25 Persons Hurt In Charleston Blast

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 4 (AP)—Explosion and fire rocked the Institute plant of Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Co. early tonight, injuring at least 25 persons and causing uncounted property damage.

The cause of the blast was not immediately established but early reports said a railroad tank car loaded with chemicals exploded inside the plant.

This set off a chain reaction that rocked the countryside and spread alarm within a 15-mile radius.

Three companies of firemen from Charleston and two others from South Charleston, as well as plant crews and other emergency groups, were battling the flames nearly two hours after the explosion.

Disaster agencies marshaled forces in the area. The Air National Guard dispatched two pumper trucks and emergency lighting equipment to the scene. Blood plasma was rushed to the scene from Huntington.

State police said that among the 25 casualties were two Dunbar housewives who were injured in their homes by the force of the explosion some three miles distant.

Telephone service between Charleston and Dunbar, about eight miles apart, virtually was disrupted.

Shortly after 9 p. m., State Police Sgt. T. S. Myers reported the fire situation "is presently growing worse."

He said firefighters were hampered by lack of lights and water.

Thomas Memorial Hospital in South Charleston had admitted 23 persons and shuttling ambulances were still bringing in more.

Police sources said the list of injured might go as high as 40. There were no known fatalities.

Another explosion was heard around 9 p. m. Observers said it might have been another tank car, but apparently there were no additional casualties as a result of it.

Institute is one of several plants in the populous Kanawha Valley area operated by subsidiary companies of the giant Union Carbide and Carbon Corp.

The plant manufactures basic raw materials used in the manufacture of plastics and other chemical products.

Guillaume French Army Staff Chief

PARIS, June 4 (AP)—Gen. Augustin Guillaume today was named chief of staff of French armed forces to succeed Gen. Paul Ely, the new French commander-in-chief in Indochina. Guillaume recently was relieved as French resident-general in Morocco.

A premier's office communiqué said the decision had been taken at last night's Cabinet meeting on both the new assignments.

Guillaume, 58, has spent much of his army life in North Africa. He was taken prisoner in World War I, and after the armistice was sent to Morocco. He played a leading part in putting down the Rifian rebels of Abd El Krim in the middle Atlas Mountain region and became a specialist on Berber questions.

He was in Morocco during the 1940-43 period of World War II as director of political affairs for the Vichy government of Marshal Pétain. After the Allied invasion of North Africa he led North African troops in the campaigns in Italy and France.

After the war, Guillaume served a term as French military attaché in Moscow and then was named commander of French forces in Germany. He left this command to take over the job as resident-general in Morocco.

Cuban Woman Described As Snarling Leader In Shooting

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Dark-eyed Lolita Lebron was pictured by two congressmen today as the snarling, screaming, banner-waving leader of the shooting spree that felled five lawmakers in the House of Representatives March 1.

"What impressed me at the time was the snarl on her face," testified pink-complexioned Rep. Louis E. Graham (R-Pa.).

"I saw the bullet coming toward me that got me," testified drawing Rep. Clifford Davis (D-Tenn.). Davis said he told this to doctors later but they wouldn't believe him. He said they told him, "You never see the one that gets you," but he insisted, "I saw that one."

Dulles Urges $3½ Billion In Foreign Aid

Advocates Plan To Stop Red Invasions
During Next Year

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles urged today that the United States invest 3½ billion dollars in foreign aid during the next 12 months to help prevent "Red domination" of the world.

"The United States cannot gain security in isolation," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "but only through a system of collective defense."

Dulles said a number of free world countries cannot maintain their military strength and economic stability in the face of Communist threats unless this country helps them.

1954 To End Authority
Congress voted last year to end all foreign aid spending authority in 1954, and Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said today his group would review the whole international situation carefully before authorizing new funds.

At the same time, Wiley said, "Not since 1950, when the Communists invaded South Korea, has the United States and its allies faced such a crisis as confronts us today."

The secretary told the committee the destruction of free world unity is the principal goal of Soviet strategy.

"This United States mutual security program is one of the ways to prevent the success of Soviet Strategy," he said.

The program, Dulles went on, "permits the free world to develop more total strength than we could possibly develop by spending the same amount of money in this country."

Continues Security Program
"Let us never forget that our allies are spending three dollars for defense purposes for every dollar that we give them."

The legislation before the Senate committee merely authorizes continuation of the mutual security program. The money for the project would have to be provided in an appropriation bill later on.

Wiley said the Senate is concerned "not only with what we can afford to do from the standpoint of our domestic economy, but also with what we must do—what we cannot afford not to do—from the standpoint of our national defense."

Under Wisconsin law, a recall election can be called only on a petition bearing signatures obtained within a 60-day period of one-fourth of the state's eligible voters, based on the total vote in the last gubernatorial election.

There are several other legal hurdles after recall petitions are received before an election can be called. The petitions must be submitted to the attorney general for checking and for his possible interpretation of the law as it governs recall of a U.S. senator.

Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Vernon Thomson, also a Republican and a McCarthy supporter, has not commented on the case, but other Republican leaders have contended that only the United States Senate can remove one of its members.

If the petitions should be received and declared valid, there would be an election called by the secretary of state, Fred R. Zimmerman, a Republican, and who has said he would be available as a candidate against McCarthy if the people wanted him.

Sen. McCarthy's name would go on the ballot with any other candidates who qualified by filing nomination papers. The candidate receiving the most votes would be declared elected.

Monitored Telephone Calls Show Sen. Symington Had Sided Army

Geneva Peace Talks Remain In Deadlock

Indochina Armistice
As Remote As When Conference Began

GENEVA, June 4 (AP)—East and West wrangled fruitlessly for four hours again today on the best way to police an armistice in Indochina. The armistice seemed almost as remote as it was when the Indochina talks opened here four weeks ago.

Most of today's talking was done by the West but informants said Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov made one speech which pointed up the distance still separating the conference from the hoped for peace in Indochina.

Reject Commie Nations

Molotov insisted that Poland and Czechoslovakia were perfectly neutral and must be included on any international commission controlling an armistice. The United States rejected inclusion of the two Communist nations because of experiences with a similar commission in Korea where Poland and Czechoslovakia tied up the work of the commission in knots.

Molotov declared that in any settlement of the war the states of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia must be treated together. This was also unacceptable to the West. Laos and Cambodia have threatened to walk out if they are accorded this treatment. The three states make up the Associated States of Indochina. The main warfare has been in Viet Nam, the largest.

The Soviet foreign minister again rejected any role for the U.N. in an effort to pacify the warring nations in Indochina. He gave as his reason that fact that five of the parties to the Indochina conference are not U. N. members.

Military Talks Continue
Military talks that started two days ago continued, but there was no announcement of results achieved. In any event these talks between both sides in the war cannot be successful without some agreement on principle in the nine-party conference.

Cambodia's delegate, Foreign Minister Tel Phan, proposed the neutral nations control commission be made up of three nations, to be picked from a list of seven. They were India, Pakistan, Burma, Canada, the Philippines, Japan and Italy.

Tel Phan said Cambodia would never agree to a ban on the import of arms, because she must have arms to maintain her internal security. He insisted that the international commission should be responsible to the U.N. and that, if it operated in Cambodia at all, it should be only to supervise the withdrawal of Viet Minh "Invaders" from the country.

Mrs. Hobby's Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which Eisenhower set up with Cabinet status last year to replace Ewing's old Federal Security Agency, was voted $1,637,615,000 for the coming year, compared with a budget request of $1,652,509,261.

Bill Is Ninth Budget
The Labor Department was allowed $298,704,000 of its $299,635,000 request; the National Labor Relations Board $8,400,000 of the $8,700,000 it sought; the National Mediation Board $1,217,000 of $1,261,000 and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service $3,010,000 of $3,180,000.

The bill, sent to the floor for debate next week, is the ninth of 11 annual departmental appropriation bills presented to the House. Thus far the House has voted approximately 40 billion of the 42 billion dollars sought by the President. The Senate has passed only three of the eight bills approved by the House, and only one of these has reached the President.

Most of the Welfare Department's budget, $1,200,000,000 is for grants to the states for public assistance.

The five have been free on bond since their conviction Friday. The jury, which heard 46 days of testimony, setting a record for federal court here, took only two hours and 15 minutes to reach a verdict.

The five were indicted here in the fall of 1952 by a federal grand jury on the charge they had violated the Smith Act. Maximum penalty under the law is five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

An MGM spokesman said she has not set a definite departure date. The Nevada residence requirement is six weeks.

House Group Approves Welfare Dept. Budget

Mrs. Hobby Censured For Spending

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower's request for $1,652,509,261 to run the Labor and Welfare Departments during the fiscal year starting July 1 was cut less than 1 per cent in a bill sent to the House floor today by the Appropriations Committee.

The committee approved $1,948,946,011, or $16,339,250 less than the President sought.

The House committee rebuked Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of welfare, for spending more than $100,000 on a chart room in her office and said she sought even more authority to transfer funds within her department than her much-criticized predecessor, Oscar Ewing.

Limits Money Shifts
The committee, headed by Rep. Busbey (R-Ill.), limited to $200,000 the amount that Mrs. Hobby may shift from one activity to another during the coming year and directed that her next budget be prepared in such a way that no transferring of funds at all may be made.

The committee noted that no money had been requested or provided for a room in which to display charts, graphs and other statistical data in Mrs. Hobby's office, and commented that the $100,000 covered only the cost of the room without any equipment or personnel to run it.

Mrs. Hobby's Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which Eisenhower set up with Cabinet status last year to replace Ewing's old Federal Security Agency, was voted $1,637,615,000 for the coming year, compared with a budget request of $1,652,509,261.

Small Indochina Seminary Scene Of 7-Hour Battle

HANOI, Indochina, June 4 (AP)—A force of 3,000 Communist-led rebels overwhelmed 1,000 Vietnamese troops and Catholic militiamen in a battle yesterday climaxed by a bloody seven-hour last stand in a Roman Catholic seminary.

Men slipped on blood-soaked stone floors and were hurled from windows in hand-to-hand combat in the seminary at the village of Quanphungua 75 miles southeast of Hanoi.

Viet Minh rebels also crushed the Vietnamese defense post of Cho Noi 24 miles southeast of Hanoi. The garrison of 60 men had been under attack for seven consecutive nights. Fall of Cho Noi posed a new threat for the vital Haiphong-Hanoi supply lifeline only nine miles away.

The twin victories were the biggest chalked up by the Viet Minh in recent weeks in the delta. They came as a rebel force of 45,000 men with heavy artillery and anti-aircraft units continued to move toward the western edge of the delta defenses from fallen Dien Bien Phu.

A French high command spokesman today gave a vivid picture of the battle that turned the seminary at the village of Quanphungua into a last ditch fortress. The village is near Bui Chi in Phat Diem province, where 400,000 of the one million population are Catholics. There are bishoprics at both the town of Phat Diem and Bui Chi.

The spokesman described the battle there as "truly one between Communists and Catholics, a religious war." For a time in the Indochina war officials of the small church state with its poorly-equipped militia had an uneasy truce with the Communist-led rebels, but this was broken three years ago.

The rebels first smashed their way into the village. The Vietnamese defenders and a handful of volunteer Catholic militiamen fell back to the seminary.

The high command spokesman said desperate hand-to-hand combat raged there with the dead and dying hurled from windows and balcony ledges. The rebels tossed grenades into the building.

McCarthy Asks Missourian To Resign Probe

Both Sides Agree
To Make Public The Majority Of Calls

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The McCarthy-Army probes learned by way of monitored phone calls today that Sen. Symington (D-Mo.) joined forces with the Army side early in the blazing dispute—and recommended that Clark Clifford, former top aide to President Truman, be engaged as lawyer for the Army.

William P. Rogers, deputy attorney general in the Eisenhower administration, also was linked—through a phone call between Symington and Secretary of the Army Stevens—with the Army's cause.

A third major disclosure was that Stevens told Symington in a phone call March 8 — just before the Army touched off the present row by filing "pressure" charges against the McCarthy camp—that he thought the charges were "very much exaggerated."

"Not Much To It"
"I think it has been a hell of a lot of talk, and I don't think there is too much there," the Army secretary said, although he added that he did not "have any particular knowledge" about the situation, which involved allegations that the McCarthy camp had pressed for favored treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine.

The "hell" in Stevens' remark was one of several mild cuss words edited out of the phone call transcripts when they were read before television cameras.

The production of the long-secret, mostly word-for-word transcripts—now finally going into the record after six weeks of deadlock—touched off one of the stormiest scenes since the televised hearings began.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) demanded that "in complete honesty and common decency" Symington take himself off the subcommittee which is airing the conflict.

Symington refused and challenged McCarthy to take the issue before the Senate as a whole. He and Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) dared the McCarthy side to let monitored telephone calls between Stevens and McCarthy aides Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr be made public.

Allow Calls On Record
Cohn took them up on that. As the hectic afternoon session ended, the 27-year-old chief counsel announced—against McCarthy's advice, the senator said—would reverse his previous stand and allow his calls to go into the record Monday. McCarthy likewise had okayed the release of his own calls a short time earlier.

Headsly, the Wisconsin senator urged Acting Chairman Mundt (R-S.D.) to get in touch with President Eisenhower over the weekend and "implore" him to let all the Army calls come into evidence.

Probe Demanded Into Private Pacts For Atomic Power

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Two Democratic congressmen today called for an immediate congressional study of charges that the taxpayers will lose 500 million dollars in the next 25 years through proposed private contracts to furnish power for atomic installations.

The charges were made in a full page advertisement in a Washington newspaper (the Post and Times-Herald) by the "Citizens For TVA," identified as a group in Nashville, Tenn.

Reps. Holford (D-Calif.) and Price (D-Ill.) urged the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee, of which they are members, to investigate contract negotiations being conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Move To Oust McCarthy Lacks Enough Backing

SAUK CITY, Wis., June 4 (AP)—Citizens seeking the recall of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) need to get at least 25,000 additional signatures onto their petition forms by Saturday midnight to keep their "Joe Must Go" movement alive. Their leaders frankly admit scant hope of success.

As the deadline neared, Leroy Gore, editor of the Sauk City weekly newspaper, who started the state-wide Joe Must Go club, said the club had only a "grim, fighting chance" to reach its goal of 403,900 signatures.

He said many petitions still are in the hands of the circulators and are to be mailed in. This makes it hard to get an actual count of signatures obtained.

Sen. McCarthy has steadfastly refused to comment specifically on the recall campaign and has told his supporters to "pay no attention" to it.

"I don't want anyone spending any money opposing it," McCarthy said.

Under Wisconsin law, a recall election can be called only on a petition bearing signatures obtained within a 60-day period of one-fourth of the state's eligible voters, based on the total vote in the last gubernatorial election.

There are several other legal hurdles after recall petitions are received before an election can be called. The petitions must be submitted to the attorney general for checking and for his possible interpretation of the law as it governs recall of a U. S. senator.

and George Fallon (D-Md.) — also testified today. The fifth, Rep. Alvin H. Bentley (R-Mich.) was to follow later.

Jensen said he was shot in the left shoulder. He said he thought at first he had been shot from behind "by some one who had a grievance with me."

"I have been pretty outspoken," Jensen said, "against people who would destroy our way of life."

Fallon said he was shot in the right hip by a bullet which then lodged in the seat of his chair.

Also on the prospective witness list are congressmen "and others present in the House chamber when the four defendants suddenly opened fire from the visitors' gallery about 2:30 on the afternoon of March 1.

The defendants, all from New York City, have said they sought to dramatize their demand for Puerto Rican independence. They are charged on five counts each of assault with intent to kill and five counts each of assault with a dangerous weapon. Maximum possible penalty upon conviction would be 75 years in prison for each.

Dulles Urges $3½ Billion In Foreign Aid

Advocates Plan To Stop Red Invasions During Next Year

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles urged today that the United States invest 3½ billion dollars in foreign aid during the next 12 months to help prevent "Red domination" of the world.

"The United States cannot gain security in isolation," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "but only through a system of collective defense."

Dulles said a number of free world countries cannot maintain their military strength and economic stability in the face of Communist threats unless this country helps them.

1954 To End Authority

Congress voted last year to end all foreign aid spending authority in 1954, and Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said today his group would review the whole international situation carefully before authorizing new funds.

At the same time, Wiley said, "Not since 1950, when the Communists invaded South Korea, has the United States and its allies faced such a crisis as confronts us today."

The secretary told the committee the destruction of free world unity is the principal goal of Soviet strategy.

"This United States mutual security program is one of the ways to prevent the success of Soviet Strategy," he said.

The program, Dulles went on, "permits the free world to develop more total strength than we could possibly develop by spending the same amount of money in this country."

Continues Security Program

"Let us never forget that our allies are spending three dollars for defense purposes for every dollar that we give them."

The legislation before the Senate committee merely authorizes continuance of the mutual security program. The money for the project would have to be provided in an appropriation bill later on.

Wiley said the Senate is concerned "not only with what we can afford to do from the standpoint of our domestic economy, but also with what we must do—what we cannot afford not to do—from the standpoint of our national defense."

Harold Hoffman, Former Governor Of N. J., Dies

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP)—Harold Giles Hoffman, 58, former governor of New Jersey, was found dead today in his New York City apartment residence. He presumably died of a heart attack.

Hoffman had been under treatment for a heart ailment for some time.

Employment security director for New Jersey for the past 15 years, Hoffman was suspended last March 18 pending an investigation of alleged irregularities in the purchase of supplies and equipment.

His three years as chief executive of New Jersey covered the period of the sensational trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnapping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby.

As governor, Hoffman several times indicated that he was not satisfied the conviction of Hauptmann entirely solved the slaying of Charles A. Lindbergh's first child. However, although he gave Hauptmann a reprieve at one time, Hoffman eventually let him go to the electric chair.

Hauptmann thanked Hoffman in a farewell letter before he was executed in 1936.

The case made Hoffman a storm center, but he stood his ground and insisted he had no regrets. His interest in the case was assailed as unwarranted by his critics, but his defenders started a shortlived boom to run him for President.

He held on for 15 minutes while the unattended vessel headed out to sea. Larry Martin, a fisherman, finally boarded the yacht, brought her under control and enabled the earl to get back aboard.

Monitored Telephone Calls Show Sen. Symington Had Sided Army

Geneva Peace Talks Remain In Deadlock

Indochina Armistice As Remote As When Conference Began

GENEVA, June 4 (AP)—East and West wrangled fruitlessly for four hours today on the best way to police an armistice in Indochina. The armistice seemed almost as remote as it was when the Indochina talks opened here four weeks ago.

Most of today's talking was done by the West but informants said Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov made one speech which pointed up the distance still separating the conference from the hoped for peace in Indochina.

Reject Commie Nations

Molotov insisted that Poland and Czechoslovakia were perfectly neutral and must be included on any international commission controlling an armistice. The United States rejected inclusion of the two Communist nations because of experiences with a similar commission in Korea where Poland and Czechoslovakia tied up the work of the commission in knots.

Molotov declared that in any settlement of the war the states of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia must be treated together. This was also unacceptable to the West. Laos and Cambodia have threatened to walk out if they are accorded this treatment. The three states make up the Associated States of Indochina. The main warfare has been in Viet Nam, the largest.

The Soviet foreign minister again rejected any role for the U. N. in an effort to pacify the warring nations in Indochina. He gave as his reason that fact that five of the parties to the Indochina conference are not U. N. members.

Military Talks Continue

Military talks that started two days ago continued, but there was no announcement of results achieved. In any event these talks between both sides in the war cannot be successful without some agreement on principle in the nine-party conference.

Cambodia's delegate, Foreign Minister Tel Phan, proposed the neutral nations control commission be made up of three nations, to be picked from a list of seven. They were India, Pakistan, Burma, Canada, the Philippines, Japan and Italy.

Tel Phan said Cambodia would never agree to a ban on the import of arms, because she must have arms to maintain her internal security. He insisted that the international commission should be responsible to the U. N. and that, if it operated in Cambodia at all, it should be only to supervise the withdrawal of Viet Minh "Invaders" from the country.

Mrs. Hobby's Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which Eisenhower set up with Cabinet status last year to replace Ewing's old Federal Security Agency, was voted $1,637,615,000 for the coming year, compared with a budget request of $1,652,509,261.

Bill Is Ninth Budget

The Labor Department was allowed $298,704,000 of its $299,635,000 request; the National Labor Relations Board $8,400,000 of the $8,700,000 it sought; the National Mediation Board $1,217,000 of $1,261,000 and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service $3,010,000 of $3,180,000.

The bill, sent to the floor for debate next week, is the ninth of 11 annual departmental appropriation bills presented to the House. Thus far the House has voted approximately 40 billion of the 42 billion dollars sought by the President. The Senate has passed only three of the eight bills approved by the House, and only one of these has reached the President.

Most of the Welfare Department's budget, $1,200,000,000 is for grants to the states for public assistance.

Ava Will Seek Nevada Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, June 4 (AP)—Ava Gardner plans to leave within the next few weeks for Lake Tahoe, Nev., to establish residence for a divorce from Frank Sinatra, her studio said today.

An MGM spokesman said she has not set a definite departure date. The Nevada residence requirement is six weeks.

Heroic French Nurse Invited To America

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The Senate unanimously joined the House today in inviting the heroic French nurse of Dien Bien Phu, Genevieve de Galard Terraube, to be the honored guest of this country.

It approved by voice vote a congressional resolution congratulating the nurse and asking her to come to this country at her earliest convenience.

Seeks McCarthy Signature

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), left, holds a consent agreement for release of monitored telephone calls and asks Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.), not shown, to sign it. Symington's action drew a call for order from Chairman Karl Mundt (R-SD) at yesterday's McCarthy-Army hearing. Seated beside Symington is Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.).

House Group Approves Welfare Dept. Budget

Mrs. Hobby Censured For Spending

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower's request for $1,965,285,261 to run the Labor and Welfare Departments during the fiscal year starting July 1 was cut less than 1 per cent in a bill sent to the House floor today by the Appropriations Committee.

The committee approved $1,948,946,011, or $16,339,250 less than the President sought.

The House committee rebuked Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, secretary of welfare, for spending more than $100,000 on a chart room in her office and said she sought even more authority to transfer funds within her department than her much-criticized predecessor, Oscar Ewing.

Limits Money Shifts

The committee, headed by Rep. Busby (R-Ill.), limited to $200,000 the amount that Mrs. Hobby may shift from one activity to another during the coming year and directed that her next budget be prepared in such a way that no transferring of funds at all may be made.

The committee noted that no money had been requested or provided for a room in which to display charts, graphs and other statistical data in Mrs. Hobby's office, and commented that the $100,000 covered only the cost of the room, without any equipment or personnel to run it.

Mrs. Hobby's Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which Eisenhower set up with Cabinet status last year to replace Ewing's old Federal Security Agency, was voted $1,637,615,000 for the coming year, compared with a budget request of $1,652,509,261.

M'Carthy Asks Missourian To Resign Probe

Both Sides Agree To Make Public The Majority Of Calls

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The McCarthy-Army probes learned by way of monitored phone calls today that Sen. Symington (D-Mo.) joined forces with the Army side early in the blazing dispute—and recommended that Clark Clifford, former top aide to President Truman, be engaged as lawyer for the Army.

William P. Rogers, deputy attorney general in the Eisenhower administration, also was linked—through a phone call between Symington and Secretary of the Army Stevens—with the Army's cause.

A third major disclosure was that Stevens told Symington in a phone call March 8—just before the Army touched off the present row by filing "pressure" charges against the McCarthy camp—that he thought the charges were "very much exaggerated."

"Not Much To It"

"I think it has been a hell of a lot of talk, and I don't think there is too much there," the Army secretary said, although he added that he did not "have any particular knowledge" about the situation, which involved allegations that the McCarthy camp had pressed for favored treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine.

The "hell" in Stevens' remark was one of several mild cuss words edited out of the phone call transcripts when they were read before television cameras.

The production of the long-secret, mostly word-for-word transcripts—now finally going into the record after six weeks of deadlock—touched off one of the stormiest scenes since the televised hearings began.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) demanded that "in complete honesty and common decency" Symington take himself off the subcommittee which is airing the conflict.

Symington refused and challenged McCarthy to take the issue before the Senate as a whole. He and Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) dared the McCarthy side to let monitored telephone calls between Stevens and McCarthy aides Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr be made public.

Allow Calls On Record

Cohn took them up on that. As the hectic afternoon session ended, the 27-year-old chief counsel announced—against McCarthy's advice, the senator said—he would reverse his previous stand and allow his calls to go into the record Monday. McCarthy likewise had okayed the release of his own calls a short time earlier.

Heatedly, the Wisconsin senator urged Acting Chairman Mundt (R-SD) to get in touch with President Eisenhower over the weekend and "implore" him to let all the Army calls come into evidence.

He also demanded that both Symington and Rogers be put under oath and cross-examined on their role in the controversy—a role they played, according to the telephone evidence, at the time of the Stevens-McCarthy clash over Brig. Gen. Ralph E. Zwicker last February.

Stevens accused McCarthy of "abusing" Zwicker in one of his probes—a charge McCarthy has denied.

Also read today were two calls between Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) and Stevens, and three between Mundt and the Army secretary. They disclosed little that was new in the controversy.

The fireworks started with the reading of the first Stevens-Symington call, dated Feb. 20, in which the Democratic senator advised Stevens to keep a written record of the hearing.

Small Indochina Seminary Scene Of 7-Hour Battle

HANOI, Indochina, June 4 (AP)—A force of 3,000 Communist-led rebels overwhelmed 1,000 Vietnamese troops and Catholic militiamen in a battle yesterday climaxed by a bloody seven-hour last stand in a Roman Catholic seminary.

Men slipped on blood-soaked stone floors and were hurled from windows in hand-to-hand combat in the seminary at the village of Quanphung 75 miles southeast of Hanoi.

Viet Minh rebels also crushed the Vietnamese defense post of Cho Noi 24 miles southeast of Hanoi. The garrison of 60 men had been under attack for seven consecutive nights. Fall of Cho Noi posed a new threat for the vital Haiphong-Hanoi supply lifeline only nine miles away.

The twin victories were the biggest chalked up by the Viet Minh in recent weeks in the delta. They came as a rebel force of 45,000 men with heavy artillery and anti-aircraft units continued to move toward the western edge of the delta defenses from fallen Dien Bien Phu.

A French high command spokesman today gave a vivid picture of the battle that turned the seminary at the village of Quanphung into a last ditch fortress. The village is near Bui Chi in Phat Diem province, where 400,000 of the one million population are Catholics. There are bishops at both the town of Phat Diem and Bui Chi.

The spokesman described the battle there as "truly one between Communists and Catholics, a religious war." For a time in the Indochina war officials of the small church state with its poorly-equipped militia had an uneasy truce with the Communist-led rebels, but this was broken three years ago.

The rebels first smashed their way into the village. The Vietnamese defenders and a handful of volunteer Catholic militiamen fell back to the seminary.

The high command spokesman said desperate hand-to-hand combat raged there with the dead and dying hurled from windows and balcony ledges. The rebels tossed grenades into the building.

The five have been free on bond since their conviction Friday. The jury, which heard 46 days of testimony, setting a record for federal court here, took only two hours and 15 minutes to reach a verdict.

The five were indicted here in the fall of 1952 by a federal grand jury on the charge they had violated the Smith Act. Maximum penalty under the law is five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Home 'Luxury Items' Taken Off FHA Loan Insurance

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The government today declared 26 home "luxury items"—including barbecue pits, tennis courts and Venetian blinds—to be ineligible for Federal Housing Administration loan insurance.

Acting FHA Commissioner Norman P. Mason issued the ruling in a move to prevent further "abuses" under the home repair and modernization program which erupted in scandal two months ago.

Mason also announced that a public hearing will be held June 14 here to permit Burton C. Bovard, FHA's general counsel, to testify in reply to charges of failure to perform his duties satisfactorily.

Bovard, who was placed on leave April 16, has refused to resign from his FHA post and requested the hearing.

The list includes kennels, flower boxes, penthouses, tree surgery, greenhouses, tennis courts, grading and landscaping, exterior steam cleaning, lawn sprinkling systems, outdoor hearths and fireplaces and television antennae.

Grammer Is Refused State Methodists Death Sentence Stay Adopt Program For World Peace

Gov. McKeldin Says He Won't Intervene For Wife Slayer

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—George Edward Grammer today lost his final bid to escape Maryland's gallows for the bludgeon-murder of his Baltimore-born wife.

Gov. McKeldin said he "could find no sound basis for intervention in the matter." Defense counsel for the 37-year-old New York businessman had appealed to McKeldin for clemency.

It was Grammer's last chance. The State Court of Appeals, the Baltimore Supreme Bench and the U.S. Supreme Court previously ruled against efforts to save him. Grammer is scheduled to die next week. Warden Vernon Pepper said tonight he would follow custom and set the time of execution for a few minutes after midnight Thursday or in the early morning hours of Friday.

The governor disagreed with arguments presented by defense attorney Joseph Sherbow that publicity made it impossible for Grammer to get a fair trial and that the crime was actually one of second degree murder.

"I find from the record that at all times the defendant received every consideration to which he was entitled," McKeldin said.

Sherbow claimed this week to have found the cab driver who took Grammer to the railroad station after the murder. He claimed this constituted proof the crime was not a planned, first-degree murder, arguing it showed Grammer had not prepared a get-away. The driver, Elliott Goldbergh, acknowledged he told Sherbow he had picked up a man in the vicinity of the murder scene, but said the incident occurred last year, not in 1952 when Grammer's wife was killed.

"The verdict of first-degree murder by the trial court in this case was in no manner based upon any finding of a method for leaving the scene of the crime as a part of the plan," McKeldin noted.

Grammer's wife was beaten to death in the hours before dawn on August 20, 1952.

Her body was found in her wrecked car at the foot of a hill in Baltimore. Police at first thought the death was an accident. Investigators, however, found that a pebble had been jammed under the accelerator in a manner that would force it down.

Grammer was accused of beating his 33-year-old wife to death, then putting her body in the car and sending it careening down the hill. The State charged he committed the crime so he could be free to marry a pretty, United Nations secretary, Mathilda Mizi brocky, of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. She testified at his trial.

Hearing Postponed

LEONARDTOWN, Md., June 4 (AP)—A preliminary hearing for Carl Willis Strickland, accused of the murder and rape of a 26-year-old Wave, was postponed today.

WESTMINSTER, Md., June 4 (AP)—Methodists of the Baltimore Conference turned their attention to problems of world peace today, with their bishop asking them:

"Do we wish to move down the road of isolation, which means eventual war, or to international cooperation which might lead to peace?"

The question was put by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam to ministers and lay delegates from 546 churches in Maryland, Washington, D.C., and small nearby areas of West Virginia and Pennsylvania. By way of answer they adopted a series of declarations on foreign policy, one of which said:

"We deplore the program of U.S. military aid for Pakistan, which cannot help but disturb the relations between that country and India. Even as our government protests the shipment of arms to Guatemala, we recognize the right of India to protest against the arming of Pakistan."

"We recognize," said another declaration, "that lasting peace cannot be established or maintained where colonial powers or puppet government circumvent the will of the people to be free and independent."

"We urge our government to take every possible and immediate step to secure a cease-fire and subsequent independence of the people of Indo-China."

"We sense the growing conviction that men must rely upon spiritual resources for the solution of international problems."

"We call on all governments to cease producing, testing and using atomic and hydrogen bombs and to negotiate through the United Nations to outlaw these forces as implements of warfare."

The bishop's annual address to the Conference and the discussion of the problems of world peace were high spots in the four days of prayers, progress reports, and future planning in which the delegates are engaged.

An estimated 1,200 gathered to hear Bishop Oxnam's message to the 180,000 church members in the Conference.

M'Carthy Asks

"Clifford," Symington said later, was Clark Clifford, former chief assistant to President Truman and now in private law practice here.

McCarthy declared at the hearing that Symington had never told the subcommittee about recommending Clifford. And he quoted with heavy irony another statement, in which Symington told Stevens, "You and I must work together on this."

"He can't conceivably sit here," McCarthy cried, "as a 'fair judge' who has said to Mr. Stevens, 'I will get you a top Democrat lawyer' and (to Stevens) 'You and I must work together.'"

Symington retorted with equal heat that he recommended Clifford only as "a good lawyer." And he said his intervention in the Army-McCarthy fight was solely to prevent any more "abusing" of generals.

Symington Called Stevens

The March 8 transcript showed Symington phoned Stevens and asked to see "the report on Schine."

Stevens told him he doubted if the Army was willing to release it because, for one thing, a lot of information "would have to be pulled together."

In other monitored calls at that period, however, Stevens expressed bitter resentment at the position in which he felt McCarthy had put him.

In the hot and heavy debate, McCarthy and Cohn demanded that the Army produce a number of telephone records—including talks between Stevens and White House officials—and leave it to be argued out later whether these can go into evidence in the light of Eisenhower's March 17 order banning disclosure of high level consultations.

In another call, Acting Chairman Mundt (R-SD) told the Army secretary that McCarthy had been off on "a one-man crusade because of something that happened last fall."

What that earlier development in the senator's relations with the Army might have been was not disclosed.

Grammer Is Refused Death Sentence Stay

Gov. McKeldin Says He Won't Intervene For Wife Slayer

BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—George Edward Grammer today lost his final bid to escape Maryland's gallows for the bludgeon-murder of his Baltimore-born wife.

Gov. McKeldin said he "could find no sound basis for intervention in the matter." Defense counsel for the 37-year-old New York businessman had appealed to McKeldin for clemency.

It was Grammer's last chance. The State Court of Appeals, the Baltimore Supreme Bench and the U.S. Supreme Court previously ruled against efforts to save him. Grammer is scheduled to die next week, Warden Vernon Pepper said tonight he would follow custom and set the time of execution for a few minutes after midnight Thursday or in the early morning hours of Friday.

The governor disagreed with arguments presented by defense attorney Joseph Sherbow that publicity made it impossible for Grammer to get a fair trial and that the crime was actually one of second degree murder.

"I find from the record that at all times the defendant received every consideration to which he was entitled," McKeldin said.

Sherbow claimed this week to have found the cab driver who took Grammer to the railroad station after the murder. He claimed this constituted proof the crime was not a planned, first-degree murder, arguing it showed Grammer had not prepared a get-away.

The driver, Elliott Goldbergh, acknowledged he told Sherbow he had picked up a man in the vicinity of the murder scene, but said the incident occurred last year, not in 1952 when Grammer's wife was killed.

"The verdict of first-degree murder by the trial court in this case was in no manner based upon any finding of a method for leaving the scene of the crime as a part of the plan," McKeldin noted.

Grammer's wife was beaten to death in the hours before dawn on August 20, 1952.

Her body was found in her wrecked car at the foot of a hill in Baltimore. Police at first thought the death was an accident.

Investigators, however, found that a pebble had been jammed under the accelerator in a manner that would force it down.

Grammer was accused of beating his 33-year-old wife to death, then putting her body in the car and sending it careening down the hill. The State charged he committed the crime so he could be free to marry a pretty, United Nations secretary, Mathilda Mizbrocky, of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. She testified at his trial.

State Methodists Adopt Program For World Peace

WESTMINSTER, Md., June 4 (AP)—Methodists of the Baltimore Conference turned their attention to problems of world peace today, with their bishop asking them:

"Do we wish to move down the road of isolation, which means eventual war, or to international cooperation which might lead to peace?"

The question was put by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam to ministers and lay delegates from 546 churches in Maryland, Washington, D.C., and small nearby areas of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

By way of answer they adopted a series of declarations on foreign policy, one of which said:

"We deplore the program of U.S. military aid for Pakistan, which cannot help but disturb the relations between that country and India. Even as our government protests the shipment of arms to Guatemala, we recognize the right of India to protest against the arming of Pakistan."

"We recognize," said another declaration, "that lasting peace cannot be established or maintained wherever colonial powers or puppet government circumvent the will of the people to be free and independent."

"We urge our government to take every possible and immediate step to secure a cease-fire and subsequent independence of the people of Indo-China."

"We sense the growing conviction that men must rely upon spiritual resources for the solution of international problems."

"We call on all governments to cease producing, testing and using atomic and hydrogen bombs and to negotiate through the United Nations to outlaw these forces as implements of warfare."

The bishop's annual address to the Conference and the discussion of the problems of world peace were high spots in the four days of prayers, progress reports, and future planning in which the delegates are engaged.

An estimated 1,200 gathered to hear Bishop Oxnam's message to the 180,000 church members in the Conference.

McCarthy Asks

of his troubles with McCarthy over the Zwicker incident. Symington also remarked that he would "talk with Clifford."

"Clifford," Symington said later, was Clark Clifford, former chief assistant to President Truman and now in private law practice here.

McCarthy declared at the hearing that Symington had never told the subcommittee about recommending Clifford. And he quoted with heavy irony another statement, in a monitored phone call, in which Symington told Stevens, "You and I must work together on this."

"He can't conceivably sit here," McCarthy cried, "as a fair judge after he has said to Mr. Stevens, 'I will get you a top Democrat lawyer' and (to Stevens) 'You and I must work together.'"

Symington retorted with equal heat that he recommended Clifford only as "a good lawyer." And he said his intervention in the Army-McCarthy fight was solely to prevent any more "abusing" of generals.

Symington Called Stevens

The March 8 transcript showed Symington phoned Stevens and asked to see "the report on Schine."

Stevens told him he doubted if the Army was willing to release it because, for one thing, a lot of information "would have to be pulled together."

In other monitored calls at that period, however, Stevens expressed bitter resentment at the position in which he felt McCarthy had put him.

In the hot and heavy debate, McCarthy and Cohn demanded that the Army produce a number of telephone records—including talks between Stevens and White House officials—and leave it to be argued out later whether these can go into evidence in the light of Eisenhower's March 17 order banning disclosure of high level consultations.

In another call, Acting Chairman Mundt (R-S.D.) told the Army secretary that McCarthy had been off on "a one-man crusade because of something that happened last fall."

What that earlier development in the senator's relations with the Army might have been was not disclosed.

IT TAKES PRACTICE

What a dilemma! Johnny should sit here and practice his piano lesson for the next hour. But there are so many things he would prefer doing . . . Of course he'd like to be able to play well. Who wouldn't?

So many of us are like Johnny. We'd like to be able to accomplish something, but we aren't willing to spend the necessary time and effort.

The same holds true in the practice of our Christian religion. How can we hope to understand the will of God without reading His Word or without supporting His Church?

In order to live the richest life, we must devote our time and talent to God's work. We will learn to direct our efforts where they will accomplish most if we will study His Word and worship in His House.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

IT TAKES PRACTICE

What a dilemma! Johnny should sit here and practice his piano lesson for the next hour. But there are so many things he would prefer doing . . . Of course he'd like to be able to play well. Who wouldn't?

So many of us are like Johnny. We'd like to be able to accomplish something, but we aren't willing to spend the necessary time and effort.

The same holds true in the practice of our Christian religion. How can we hope to understand the will of God without reading His Word or without supporting His Church?

In order to live the richest life, we must devote our time and talent to God's work. We will learn to direct our efforts where they will accomplish most if we will study His Word and worship in His House.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Water Level In Dams Up After Storm

The two hard rainy spells have added a total of two feet two inches to the city's two dams in Pennsylvania, but the reservoirs need six feet ten inches more of water for both to be full.

Today Lake Koon's crest is one foot four inches below the spillway, while the level of Lake Gordon is five feet six inches below the dam's top.

Sunday Lake Koon was one foot four inches from being full and Lake Gordon, seven feet eight inches.

More Rain Here

Cumberland has had more rainfall this week than has the Lake Gordon and Koon watershed.

R. R. Golden, Weather Bureau observer here, recorded 1.03 inches of precipitation on Tuesday and 1.21 Thursday, for a total of 2.24 inches.

C. R. Brotemarkle, assistant superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, has measured 1.24 inches on Tuesday and .74 of an inch Thursday for a total of 1.98 inches.

The curtailment of the use of city water will continue until both dams are full, William J. Edwards, water commissioner, has decreed.

The rainfall this week is definitely against the trend of the past 12 months. Already, with only five days of June gone, the precipitation is 58 per cent of what normally falls in June.

Many Months Below

The normal rainfall in Cumberland for June is 3.88 inches. The total of 2.24 this week leaves only 1.64 inches more for the situation to be normal.

Since last May 31, there have been only two of the 12 months to have above-average rainfall. All the rest have been below the normal figure computed for Cumberland by the Weather Bureau.

The drought of the past year resulted in Lake Koon being depleted at one time and Lake Gordon dropping to a critical level.

Demurrer Filed In Land Dispute

A demurrer has been filed in Garrett County Circuit Court at Oakland by William C. Walsh, of Cumberland, attorney for Fulcher P. Smith and his wife, in the suit brought by the State Department of Forests and Parks in attempting to condemn a section of land along Deep Creek Lake for a public park site.

The demurrer declares the petition for condemnation "is bad in substance and insufficient in law." It listed several reasons, the chief one of which was that the petition did not adequately describe the property of the Smiths which the petitioners wanted to condemn.

In answering the petition the Smiths, through their attorney, allege that the petitioners wish to acquire by condemnation a tract or parcel of land consisting of 70.82 acres in election district No. 6 in the Meadow Mountain area near Glendale bridge. It is stated that the petition gives metes and bounds and description of the property of all the holdings of the Smiths in that area amounting to several hundred acres, and that it was impossible for the "respondents to determine from said allegations and descriptions just what and the petitioners wish to acquire in these proceedings."

The demurrer continues that the petition in no way indicates the 70.82 acres of land desired. It was indicated that other "good and sufficient" reasons would be shown at a hearing which would be held on the demurrer. Walsh signified in the papers filed in the court house that the demurrer was not intended for delay.

The petition instituting condemnation proceedings were started May 4. Filing the petition in the court were members of the State Board of Forests and Parks, which includes Paul B. Naylor, of Oakland; also R. Brooke Maxwell, chairman; H. Lee Hoffman, J. Miles Lankford, J. Wilson Lord.

Relic Of New Saint Is At St. Patrick's

A "first class" relic of St. Pius X was used to bless parishioners of St. Patrick's Catholic Church at the 8:30 and 10 a. m. masses Sunday.

Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor, said he received the relic, part of a bone, from a friend in Rome. Papers from the Vatican confirmed its authenticity.

The relic of the sainted pope, who was canonized last week, is also used by Father Kilkenny to bless the sick at home and in hospitals. It is carried in a small gold case.

Tax Exempt Idea Cited By Firm Official

An official of a local lumber company in a letter to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday stated that he thought the law providing for certain tax exemption to new or expanded industries or businesses was "class legislation."

The letter was signed by W. H. Solomon, who wrote that he was speaking for the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company, Inc., which has its business in Narrows Park.

The letter follows:

"I have noted in the local newspapers from time to time requests for exemption of taxes.

"Frankly, I feel this almost comes under the title of 'class legislation' when granted. Why should one person or company be favorable with a tax release or exemption and another have to pay?

"People go into business to make a profit. I have never heard of them refunding the exemptions at a later date when they have made money. Within the past several years I recall of an application in Cumberland for exemption. I don't know if the company was granted same, but they are now reported to be worth a million dollars.

"This is certainly no request from us for exemption, but if others are going to be granted then we expect to apply. We too have just completed a new building on Route 40 as of January 1, 1954 (what was previously an eyesore a public dump). We hope eventually to make it pay. We built it to make money and we don't want the balance of the public to foot our bills.

"Surely, we would be entitled to request exemption. Within the past five years since we first started in Allegany County we suffered a terrible loss by fire which we are still working to overcome.

"Personally, I feel that even those the law specifies are unfair and unjust to the balance of the public. It is not any easier for one man to pay his taxes today than another."

Seed costs account for about six per cent of the total cost of producing corn.

Spano Named President Of County Druggists

Arthur N. Spano was elected president of the Allegany County Pharmacists Association at a meeting Wednesday night in Happy Hills Restaurant.

Other officers are W. Dale Timmons, George W. Wagner, vice president, and C. Murray Allen, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the executive committee are W. Dale Timmons, Howard E. Cooper, Harry J. Walsh and John Andrews.

Ridgeley Loan Contract On Water Line Proposed

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan is to draw a contract for construction of a water line over the new bridge between Cumberland and Ridgeley with the West Virginia city to pay the cost on a monthly basis.

No limit was set on construction cost by the Mayor and Council but the "loan" will be repaid at a monthly rate plus 2½ per cent interest on the diminishing balance. It was estimated payments will extend over a ten-year period.

Ridgeley needs city assurance so it can go before the West Virginia Public Service Commission and seek increased assessments for the work plus a sewage treatment system, according to William D. Bidinger, mayor.

Two bids were received on road oil for the Street Department and referred to Commissioner Lucile Roeder. Bidding were Chaney Transportation Company, $1,075 a gallon, and Garland Petroleum Company, $1,069 a gallon in trailer-load or tank car lots.

City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson was authorized to issue a check for $350 payable to Maude F. Dusch for property needed in the flood control work. This brought total cost to $7,150, the amount set after condemnation. The city had originally given the appraised value of $6,800 but the Corps of Engineers refused. The case then went to condemnation by the Corps of Engineers at request of the city.

Payment of $50 was also approved for Jesse H. Simmons for appraisal work in Ridgeley in connection with the flood project.

Circus Granted Approval For Showing Here

The first application for a circus this year came before the Mayor and Council Tuesday.

Cumberland Exchange Club asked permission and was authorized to use Community Ball Park for the Kelly-Morris Circus August 2. Council said the club should get further approval from the Interior Department for use of the field however.

Stanley Demski, secretary of the club, said the circus from Havana, Ind., is making its first tour of the east and is a three-ring show.

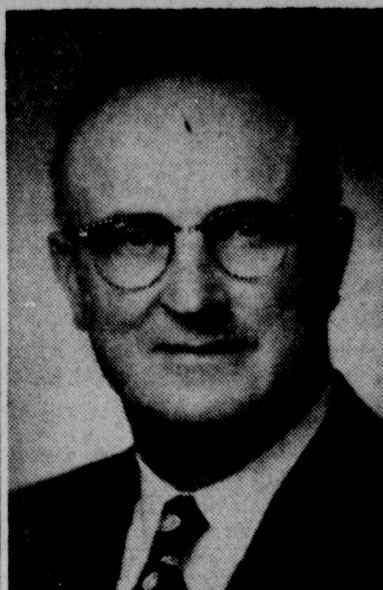

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan was authorized to write the CAA to see if it approved construction of an antenna atop the administration building at Municipal Airport. Kelly-Springfield Tire Company which hangs its plane at the port had proposed the antenna at its own cost. Arthur J. Weber, chairman of the Airport Commission, said the group had approved the proposal in a letter to council.

Approved was payment of $26,203.95 representing first estimate on cost of Valley Street bridge to the S. T. Brotemarkle Construction Company.

Referred to City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum was the request of Lloyd H. Buchanan to close an alley from Western Maryland Railway tracks to Trenton Avenue between Mary and Elizabeth streets.

Re-Elected Director

Richard G. DuVall, 840 Camden Avenue, manager of the Piedmont Grocery Company, was re-elected a director of the United States Wholesale Grocers Association at a recent convention in St. Louis.

Rev. Reginald F. White of Birmingham, England, will be the speaker at the Youth for Christ meeting today at 8 p. m. at the Salvation Army Citadel, North Mechanic Street. Rev. White will show color slides of bombed cities in Germany and Austria and Nazi concentration camps.

LaVale School Water Supply Is Assured

The new elementary school in LaVale will be supplied by water for fire protection, drinking and sanitary purposes from the LaVale Sanitary Commission's Red Hill reservoir.

The commission announced yesterday that an agreement has been made with the Allegany County Board of Education to furnish the school in Allegany Grove under construction with water.

An eight-inch main will be laid from the National Highway along Parkside Avenue to the school, furnishing the residents along that street and the school.

Cost of the project, estimated to be $12,000 will be paid by the Board of Education, a commission spokesman said, as the LaVale body does not have funds available for expansion of its system.

The board will be reimbursed over a period of years for this expenditure. Revenue for the cost of the water service will be placed in a board account to liquidate the $12,000.

In other words, instead of paying the commission for the water the amount of the bill will go toward the reducing the cost of the line. The commission will own the line. Such a plan was used to lay the lines to the State Roads Garage and the Market Building Commission.

pany homes on Braddock Roads.

The sanitary commission spokesman said the new school will get water from the Red Hill Reservoir that was a part of the old LaVale Water Company's supply. All LaVale west of Footer's Plant gets its water from this source. The eastern portion obtains water from Cumberland.

LaVale School Water Supply Is Assured

The new elementary school in LaVale will be supplied by water for fire protection, drinking and sanitary purposes from the LaVale Sanitary Commission's Red Hill reservoir.

The commission announced yesterday that an agreement has been made with the Allegany County Board of Education to furnish the school in Allegany Grove under construction with water.

An eight-inch main will be laid from the National Highway along Parkside Avenue to the school, furnishing the residents along that street and the school.

Cost of the project, estimated to be $12,000 will be paid by the Board of Education, a commission spokesman said, as the LaVale body does not have funds available for expansion of its system.

The board will be reimbursed over a period of years for this expenditure. Revenue for the cost of the water service will be placed in a board account to liquidate the pany homes on Braddock Roads. The sanitary commission spokesman said the new school will get water from the Red Hill Reservoir that was a part of the old LaVale Water Company's supply. All LaVale west of Footer's Plant gets its water from this source. The eastern portion obtains water from Cumberland.

'Slow Down And Live' Campaign Underway

With the long summer vacation season at hand, the governors of 24 Northeastern and Southern states have placed a summertime highway safety program in effect. It largely duplicates the program undertaken last summer by 11 states in the coastal area bounded on the north by Maine, on the west by New York and Pennsylvania and on the south by Maryland.

Last year the governors of the smaller group went to war on speeders, using the full force of state, county and local police forces, and the various courts. The theory was that if a sufficient deterrent could be placed on speeders, the number of those killed on the highways could be reduced. Not only did the statistics of June, July and August 1953 fail to reflect previously the anticipated increase in traffic deaths but they showed a three per cent decrease compared to the previous summer.

Addition of 14 states this year puts the program into effect along the whole Atlantic seaboard, and across the South as far west as the Mississippi. A joint declaration, issued simultaneously by the participating state executives, says:

"We are convinced that many courteous, cautious drivers suffer at the hands of those who are obsessed with the 'in a hurry' complex. . . . The states, in their separate ways, have pledged the strongest possible action to make their highways safer during the vacation season.

"Slow Down and Live" is a good slogan because anyone who gets behind the wheel, or into a car as a passenger, can identify himself with it. It deserves the support of the public everywhere, not merely in the 25 states engaged in this action, and will get it from the police and enforcement agencies.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Constitutional Problem

The Peress case, which started the McCarthy-Stevens hearing, has disappeared altogether. The Cohn-Schine episode, about which much of the testimony has been taken, is moving into a miasma of irreconcilable contradictions. What is developing is a constitutional debate on a basic issue, namely, the conflict of authority between the executive and legislative branches of the government.

While this conflict of view arises out of the McCarthy-Stevens hearing, perhaps even out of the very existence of Senator McCarthy and his investigating committee, it is not limited to that. Senators, presidents, attorneys general come and go, but the Constitution holds and the principle of limited powers holds. This issue applies to every committee of both houses of the Congress. Different administrations have interpreted the relations among the various branches of government differently. Andrew Jackson, for instance, evidenced a contempt for the Supreme Court, while Franklin D. Roosevelt tried to pack the court, which Congress would not permit him to do.

The present conflict of view is over the power of Congress to investigate the executive. A committee of the Senate, formally constituted, exists under the title of "Committee on Government Operations." That committee is now under the chairmanship of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy. Should the Democrats come into control of the Senate, the chairman would be Senator John L. McClellan, should he be re-elected.

A subcommittee of this Senate committee is the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. The sole function of this subcommittee is to investigate the executive branch of the government. Its duty is to discover whether the laws are being executed according to congressional intent, or whether corruption or subversion exists in the executive branch of the government.

Both of these committees have been brought into existence by congressional decision and their duties are unchallengeable. It is not within the spirit of our laws that the executive branch of the government shall police itself solely. Were it so, such committees as these would not exist and no committee of Congress would have investigative powers. The fact is that all committees of Congress possess investigative powers, without which Congress could not function at all.

The Constitution does not provide for the investigative powers of the Congress, but such powers have been upheld by the courts in Kilbourne v. Thompson, 1881, by Interstate Commerce Commission v. Harman, 1908. The gist of the decisions is that "The powers of Congress in respect to investigation and legislation are not absolutely identical, but the power of investigation is the wider and extends to matters on which Congress could not constitutionally legislate directly, if they are reasonably calculated to afford information useful and material in the framing of constitutional legislation."

James Madison, in "The Federalist," No. 47, states: "... The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive, and judiciary, in the same hands, whether of one, a few, or many, and whether hereditary, self-appointed, or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny"

The Constitution therefore separates the powers to avoid tyranny, but a complete and total separation would produce anarchy because each branch of government would go its own way absolutely; therefore bridges among the branches were established. Congress passes legislation which the executive must approve or veto; the executive negotiates and signs treaties, but the Senate must ratify them before they become law; the judiciary is independent of Congress and the president, but they are appointed by the president, must be confirmed by the Senate, and the Congress appropriates the money to pay their salaries and expenses.

Madison made the point in "The Federalist," No. 48:

"... I shall undertake, in the next place, to show that unless these departments be so far connected and blended as to give to each a constitutional control over the others, the degree of separation which the maxim requires, as essential to a free government, can never in practice be duly maintained."

In a word, while there must be no encroachment, there must be a connection, a relationship, at times, even a blending of powers so that government may be practically workable. The power of the Congress to investigate the executive branch of government is an essential function if our government is to be neither a tyranny nor an anarchy. Men may differ as to how investigations may be made, but not as to whether they should be made or that they should be made constantly.

Here I Am, Over Here!

British Found Aware Of Dangers Of Vacillating Policy

By David Lawrence

LONDON — Whatever impression the outside world may have gotten heretofore that the British are unaware of the dangers of a policy of vacillation with respect to the Geneva Conference can certainly be erased now as unrealistic. For the latest comments from the press here indicate the exact opposite.

The London Daily Telegraph, which is one of the leading newspapers supporting the Conservatives—the party which is today in power in the government—is calling for a firm statement of policy and is warning the Communists that Britain may have to consider a revision of her policy of waiting for the Geneva Conference to adjourn before making any new commitments. Presumably this means joining the Southeast Asia Security Pact. The Telegraph had this to say the other day:

Triumph For Eden
"At Geneva the negotiators are now getting nearer to grips. Discussions are at last to be held on the practical details of arranging an armistice and regrouping the rival forces in Indochina. That Geneva has got this far in a sense a triumph for Mr. Eden. It is certain, too, that all his qualifications as honest broker will be tested to the full by the trying negotiations which still lie ahead."

"In the first place, it is far from evident that Communist readiness to talk about an armistice betrays any desire for an armistice, still less any readiness to make sacrifices (such as Laos and Cambodia, for instance) to reach one. Even supposing that they do desire an armistice, there is still the question of who is to supervise it, who to guarantee it. By what means, moreover, are we to prevent Viet Minh from stealing by subtlety what they have not already seized by force?"

"It must also be recognized that the indefinite protraction of the negotiations without any settlement being reached would be a triumph not for us but for the Communists. Such an indefinite continuance of the talks would make it necessary to consider a revision of the present British policy of refusing to enter into any commitments until the conference has ended. There is an obvious temptation to the Communists to try and keep us indefinitely at Geneva, dangling the prospect of a settlement before us like a carrot, while Indochina is simultaneously settled by force.

Could Help Bridge Gap
"Unless the United States is assured of British support, she may hesitate to commit herself further in Indochina; without further American commitment, France is unlikely to send substantial reinforcements to what many Frenchmen regard as a sinking ship, and may settle for such terms—if any—as she can get. We should, therefore, make it plain at Geneva that, while our desire for a peaceful settlement remains as strong as ever, unless one is reached within a reasonable time we shall have to join our allies in seeking other ways of stabilizing the situation."

"In this way we could do much to bridge the gap which has opened between American policy and our own in the Far East. It is true that there is no rift between what our two peoples desire. Both long for peace, both are reluctant to commit themselves to a new Korea, both probably sympathize with Mr. Eden's sincere efforts at Geneva. Nor is the rift of policy between those who think a third world war inevitable and those who do not; we disagree solely on the method of avoiding it.

"In essence, the American view is that by taking a calculated risk now we shall avoid the necessity of taking far graver risks later; we think it best to try negotiation to the full. Both views can be cogently defended, and time may reconcile them. In the meantime, it would be disastrous if our great alliance were damaged by mutual suspicions. No doubt the Communists will do their utmost in this phase of the negotiations to drive a wedge between ourselves and the Americans; it is a danger against which we should be on guard."

Firm Statement Would Help
"So far from endangering the prospects of a settlement, the firm statement of our policy could only enhance them. One must suppose that there are in the Kremlin—perhaps even in Peking—men who for various reasons are appalled by the prospect of a third world war. If that be so, we must be careful not to undermine their position by undue weakness. If we are firm, they will be able to restrain the hotheads in Indochina and elsewhere by pointing to the terrible risks they are running. How are they to restrain anyone, however, if we remain divided and impotent while Viet Minh scores success after success?"

"The best way of testing Communist intentions is by clarifying our own. Theirs are not inflexible in detail; they depend to a great extent on ours. There would be no greater mistake for the Communists than to imagine that what ever happens we intend to do nothing."

Baering Down on The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

It has been our self-funding opinion that things have never been as bad as amateur theatricals. Nor as good as Secretary Dulles claimed.

As a perpetual optimist Mr. Dulles rated with the old lady who didn't care what happened provided it didn't happen to her.

Our trouble shooter on the high velocity parallels swung an influential portfolio on the international circuit. Until he said something trivial about massive retaliation.

Whereupon our fair weather allies predicted clear skies and sunny neutrality for themselves.

France and England reminded Mr. Dulles that audience participation did not include getting into the cage with the lions.

Massive retaliation was lavened away in the hope chest with the intimate things of international romancing. With it is the administration mirage of an atomic energy pool for peaceful pursuits.

You will notice whenever peace is mentioned it's a pursuit.

Moscow agreed to this proposition. It must have found an old affirmative rubber-stamp among the czarist loot. But there was a double snapper in the bon-bon. It said first there must be an agreement to scrap all atomic hardware.

We know that Moscow agreements don't keep during hot weather. And it's June now.

The best thing we got out of this was cooperation of the Republicans and the Democrats on our foreign policies. Both parties insist politics stop at the water's edge. But the water's edge never stops.

With France and England taking a powder we are between the sweat and the high grass.

We'll have to go it alone like a boy on a bicycle. But let's buzz you a nutritious item.

Our feet on the handle bars are better than somebody else's hands.

Mouth Is The Mirror And Subject Of Many Diseases

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Trench mouth reached its peak shortly after World War I but its incidence has declined considerably since then. The cause is not clear but the disease is more prevalent among persons who are fatigued, eat poorly, and have low resistance to infection. In this respect, trench mouth may be used as an index of our standard of living.

While this condition has been declining, other oral disturbances have increased. Many lesions have been traced to our new medications including the sulfonamides and antibiotics. In older men and women, dentures may lead to local irritation of gums, cheeks, or lips. Cancer is another disorder that may involve these parts. Psychosomatic disturbances may be overlooked; the effects of "nerves" on the mouth are as obvious as skin lesions from the same cause.

The mouth reflects disease, consequently it is considered a diagnostic mirror of the body. Physicians have looked at the tongue for centuries to gauge the state of health. The structure is examined whenever a cold and an intestinal tract disturbance develops. If the body is dehydrated, the tongue is dry; with anemia, the lingual surface is likely to be red and smooth.

Minor tongue symptoms are common and usually can be traced to local irritation or friction. Burning, for example, may result from the habit of rubbing the tongue against the incisors. Lingua nigra (black tongue) stems from using antibiotics such as penicillin or aureomycin. These drugs kill certain bacteria in the oral cavity but allow others, such as fungi, to flourish; this gives the tongue a black, hairy appearance.

In leucoplakia, white patches develop on the tongue and inner cheeks as a result of irritation. The lesions were discovered initially in pipe smokers; the direct action of the products of heat and combustion are responsible. Since leucoplakia is considered a precancerous condition, it is advisable to obtain good medical care.

The lips are susceptible to a variety of disturbances. Cracks and fissures at corners of the mouth (cheilitis) are troublesome and are seen frequently in older individuals whose bite is changed after wearing dentures for a number of years. Wasting away of the gum ridges leads to drooling and the ensuing flow of saliva mace-

everybody aside in her desire to be first into it. "What's the rush?" growled a cop. "I know what I'm doing," she chortled. "The last four raids I had to stand up!"

Cohn And Schine Used Dubious German Informants In Trip Through Europe

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The full story has never been told of the Cohn-Schine comic-opera investigation of Europe that first catapulted Senator McCarthy's double-trouble boys into the public spotlight.

The two junior G-men made a barnstorming trip through Europe last year, breezing in and out of a few U. S. libraries, and holding conspiratorial conferences with a motley collection of informants, including a suspected Communist spy, a German politician fired for embezzlement, and a discredited journalist making a living circulating anti-American anti-Eisenhower throw sheets.

Advance spadework for their trip was done by Arthur Noyes, a stringer for the pro-McCarthy Chicago Tribune. The day before the McCarthy team arrived in Frankfurt, Noyes hustled over to the U. S. library and searched through the book catalogues for controversial authors. He also collected information from an ex-Nazi, named Fred Rudl, who had been sent by Hitler to Prague after the annexation of Czechoslovakia to "Aryanize" the famous Orbis Publishing House.

A few weeks later, Chicago Tribune publisher Col. Robert McCormick passed through Germany and handed Noyes a $1,000 check.

"You have done a good job, my boy, and I can see that you need a vacation," remarked the colonel.

Row In A Hotel
The two McCarthy gumshoes seemed unusually preoccupied with investigating alleged homosexuals, including one very prominent U. S. official.

The pair also made a show of registering for separate hotel rooms, remarking loudly that they didn't work for the State Department.

The incident of their quarrel in a Frankfurt hotel corridor, reported in this column one year ago, was actually reported at the time by the United Press representative in Germany. But UP superiors killed it, possibly in line with the solicitude which the press associations have sometimes displayed toward McCarthy.

What happened was that Schine discovered a notebook missing, and dispatched his driver back to the hotel to search his other trunks. When the driver returned empty handed, Schine dragged Cohn to the hotel with him to look for it. On the way, Schine accused Cohn of stealing it.

The spat got to heated in the hotel corridor that Schine smacked Cohn over the head with a rolled-up magazine. Schine also demanded a search of Cohn's luggage, then suddenly remembered he had left the bothersome notebook in California. Later, their room was found in disarray.

The incident seemed newsworthy to United Press reporter Bill Long, who filed a dispatch. It was killed. Rankled over this suppression of the news, Long turned the story over to the Frankfurt Abendpost, which published it in full.

Cohn immediately retaliated by investigating Abendpost, as to whether the paper had even received a U. S. loan. Cohn also demanded privately that the U. S. Consulate at Frankfurt take measures against Abendpost.

Probing The Libraries
The two junior G-men paid superficial visits to only two of the 48 American libraries in Germany, then announced to the press that they had found Communist books in "virtually every" library.

In Frankfurt they spent only 30 minutes in a hectic half-hour search through the bookshelves and card files of the U. S. library, answering questions from reporters while they "investigated." Then, leaving newsmen outside, they barged into the library director's office.

Cohn opened the conversation by announcing, "Whew, I'm tired." Then he pulled off his coat and stretched out on a couch with his legs on the coffee table. He conducted the entire interrogation from this horizontal position.

Germans smiled, some openly snickered at the local informants used by the McCarthy gumshoes to get the "goods" on prominent U. S. officials. They included:

1. Wolfgang Loehde, 28-year-old agitator, whose signature was found on a Communist handbill protesting against the European Defense Community. Loehde was linked with the Red front organization, Landesgemeinschaft zur Verteidigung der Demokratischen Rechte und Freiheiten in Bayern.

2. Hermann Aumer, former Bundestag member, who was kicked out of the German legislature and expelled from his political party in October 1950 when it was proved that he accepted a 22,000-mark bribe from the oil companies to vote for a raise in gasoline prices.

3. Werner Schoeknecht, who was dismissed as editor of the Coburg Neue Presse because of his Nazi background. Before he joined forces with McCarthy's investigators, Schoeknecht put out hate circulars including Das Extrablatt, which viciously attacked President Eisenhower and the United States in general.

Elster's Ex-Wife
Before the two gumshoes left Germany, they enlisted Mrs. Hede Massing-Elster as an investigator for McCarthy. She is the ex-wife of Gerhardt Elster, once branded as the top Communist spy in the United States, who jumped bail here and fled to East Germany.

Cohn and Schine supplied Mrs. Massing with a McCarthy subpoena to serve if she needed it, plus a letter, stating she was an official investigator for the McCarthy Committee. As they boarded the plane to take off, Cohn shouted back: "If you need anything, Hede, or if you get in any trouble, just call Joe."

A Toast To Nurses

By Brother Barnabas

If one has never been a patient in a hospital his education is incomplete. He must have that experience before he can join emotionally in the procession of graduating nurses now advancing to receive their togas in every community that is blessed with a hospital.

The experience is easily obtained. All one has to do is walk in front of a moving automobile. The ambulance will do the rest.

Or, have the doctor tell the authorities you have the heebie jeebies. Then, after you have signed away your right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, you can make yourself at home and take life easy.

You are not just a "case", which you probably are in real life, but a guest, tantamount to the "Conquering Lion of Judah."

You are impaled on a bed in which George Washington may have tried to sleep but couldn't. There you lie crumpled up till an orderly brings in another model tailored to measure.

You Are Not Forgotten
You have your breakfast in bed and the coffee is steaming hot. Your library table is littered with papers and magazines, and your television brings you a ringside account of the "Mcarmy" bout.

Friends send flowers and the postman brings daily reminders that you are not forgotten. Your chaplain is attentive to your spiritual necessities.

You have such a wonderful time that "you don't want to get well." Where can you find a healthier spot for entertainment and recuperation?

The high priestesses of this Elysian realm are the nurses. Nattily gowned, slipped and coiffured, they flit sylphlike up and down the corridors and in and out of the rooms, dispensing smiles and words of cheer that do good like a medicine.

Sharply etched in the consciousness of all nurses is the profile of Florence Nightingale, their patron saint, who turned her back on the pride and glitter of life to dedicate herself to human suffering.

Necessary Ingredients Needed
Like Joan of Arc she heard a voice—God's voice—calling her to His service. She was 13 when she heard the call, and when she died at 90 she had built a monument more lasting than brass, dedicated to the magnificent achievement of lifting nursing out of the sink and making it an honorable vocation, and laying deep the foundations of modern hospitalization.

At first she had thought that all the ingredients necessary to relieve misery were tenderness, sympathy and patience. But she soon learned that expert skill must be added,

REPLY
Hospitalization may help, but I doubt if anyone can promise cure of this condition.

THE CATARACT AGE
G. W. writes: Is 60 too old to have a cataract removed?

REPLY
No. Cataracts are most common around this age and the operation is geared for 60-year-olds. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on this disorder.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

The average woman of over 30 years of age weighs more than 130 pounds, we read. What's the difference—she won't admit to either!

The Chicago White Sox now have,

and that required education and training.

Said she: "A nurse ministers to the spirit as well as the body." Nursing is of the spirit. A patient is not a piece of furniture to be kept clean and saved from injury or breakage.

In one of the battles of the Civil War, a rude hospital was crowded and the surgeons were busy with their instruments of pain. In the midst of the agony and anguish there stood a young girl who had devoted her life to nursing.

When the young man's turn came and he faced the operation, he said he thought he could undergo it, if the young lady would come and hold his hand.

A young blond-haired doughboy lay mortally wounded in an Army hospital following a bloody battle. The young nurse trying to console him and not knowing what to say, stroked his hair and said, "You have beautiful hair!" His last words were, "I have nothing on you!"

Tragedy and comedy are strangely mixed in the life of a nurse. A man in a psychosomatic state is peculiarly susceptible to the charms of a personable nurse.

In the present instance the nurse in charge responded to the call of a patient, thinking he wanted the shades adjusted or his pillow fluffed.

Cause or Consequence?

Instead, he proposed marriage. The next day he was removed to the psychopathic ward where he was pronounced balmy.

Whether his dementia was cause or consequence of the proposal is debatable. The safe deduction is that pretty nurses are lethal, and hospitals do not provide the proper atmosphere for romance.

Maryland needs nurses badly. The demand far exceeds the supply. A hospital without nurses would be like a "womanless wedding." The doctors rely upon them. In the operating room they often hold the balance between the life or death of the patient.

She often knows as much about obstetrics as Dr. Stork, and she likes to hold a puppet show in the glassed-in nursery where she performs acrobatic feats with the little darlings for the entertainment of the spectators.

Once upon a time a nurse met with a terrible misfortune: she allowed her "charge" to slip from her arms, and he fell to the floor and became a cripple for life. Despite his infirmity, Mephoboseth managed to "go places." Read the story in Second Samuel 4:4 and 9:5-10.

Orchids to the graduate nurses!

Some Eskimo tribes now raise their own vegetables — Factographs. Sort of an Arctic branch of the frozen food industry?

three former big league batting champions on their roster. This should make a hit—even if it's just with the fans.

With the long summer vacation season at hand, the governors of 24 Northeastern and Southern states have placed a summertime highway safety program in effect. It largely duplicates the program undertaken last summer by 11 states in the coastal area bounded on the north by Maine, on the west by New York and Pennsylvania and on the south by Maryland.

Last year the governors of the smaller group went to war on speeders, using the full force of state, county and local police forces, and the various courts. The theory was that if a sufficient deterrent could be placed on speeders, the number of those killed on the highways could be reduced. Not only did the statistics of June, July and August 1953 fall to reflect previously the anticipated increase in traffic deaths but they showed a three per cent decrease compared to the previous summer.

Addition of 14 states this year puts the program into effect along the whole Atlantic seaboard, and across the South as far west as the Mississippi. A joint declaration, issued simultaneously by the participating state executives, says:

"We are convinced that many courteous, cautious drivers suffer at the hands of those who are obsessed with the 'in a hurry' complex. . . . The states, in their separate ways, have pledged the strongest possible action to make their highways safer during the vacation season.

"Slow Down and Live" is a good slogan because anyone who gets behind the wheel, or into a car as a passenger, can identify himself with it. It deserves the support of the public everywhere, not merely in the 25 states engaged in this action, and will get it from the police and enforcement agencies.

The Constitutional Problem

The Peress case, which started the McCarthy-Stevens hearing, has disappeared altogether. The Cohn-Schine episode, about which much of the testimony has been taken, is moving into a miasma of irreconcilable contradictions. What is developing is a constitutional debate on a basic issue, namely, the conflict of authority between the executive and legislative branches of the government.

While this conflict of view arises out of the McCarthy-Stevens hearing, perhaps even out of the very existence of Senator McCarthy and his investigating committee, it is not limited to that. Senators, presidents, attorneys general come and go, but the Constitution holds and the principle of limited powers holds. This issue applies to every committee of both houses of the Congress. Different administrations have interpreted the relations among the various branches of government differently. Andrew Jackson, for instance, evidenced a contempt for the Supreme Court, while Franklin D. Roosevelt tried to pack the court, which Congress would not permit him to do.

The present conflict of view is over the power of Congress to investigate the executive. A committee of the Senate, formally constituted, exists under the title of "Committee on Government Operations." That committee is now under the chairmanship of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy. Should the Democrats come into control of the Senate, the chairman would be Senator John L. McClellan, should he be re-elected.

A subcommittee of this Senate committee is the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. The sole function of this subcommittee is to investigate the executive branch of the government. Its duty is to discover whether the laws are being executed according to congressional intent, or whether corruption or subversion exists in the executive branch of the government.

Both of these committees have been brought into existence by congressional decision and their duties are unchallengeable. It is not within the spirit of our laws that the executive branch of the government shall police itself solely. Were it so, such committees as these would not exist and no committee of Congress would have investigative powers. The fact is that all committees of Congress possess investigative powers, without which Congress could not function at all.

The Constitution does not provide for the investigative powers of the Congress, but such powers have been upheld by the courts in Kilbourn v. Thompson, 1881, by Interstate Commerce Commission v. Harrisman, 1908. The gist of the decisions is that "The powers of Congress in respect to investigation and legislation are not absolutely identical, but the power of investigation is the wider and extends to matters on which Congress could not constitutionally legislate directly, if they are reasonably calculated to afford information useful and material in the framing of constitutional legislation."

James Madison, in "The Federalist," No. 47, states: ". . . The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive, and judiciary, in the same hands, whether of one, a few, or many, and whether hereditary, self-appointed, or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny . . ."

The Constitution therefore separates the powers to avoid tyranny, but a complete and total separation would produce anarchy because each branch of government would go its own way absolutely; therefore bridges among the branches were established. Congress passes legislation which the executive must approve or veto; the executive negotiates and signs treaties, but the Senate must ratify them before they become law; the judiciary is independent of Congress and the president, but they are appointed by the president, must be confirmed by the Senate, and the Congress appropriates the money to pay their salaries and expenses.

Madison made the point in "The Federalist," No. 48:

"... I shall undertake, in the next place, to show that unless these departments be so far connected and blended as to give to each a constitutional control over the others, the degree of separation which the maxim requires, as essential to a free government, can never in practice be duly maintained."

In a word, while there must be no encroachment, there must be a connection, a relationship, at times, even a blending of powers so that government may be practically workable. The power of the Congress to investigate the executive branch of government is an essential function if our government is to be neither a tyranny nor an anarchy. Men may differ as to how investigations may be made, but not as to whether they should be made or that they should be made constantly.

British Found Aware Of Dangers Of Vacillating Policy

By David Lawrence

LONDON — Whatever impression the outside world may have gotten heretofore that the British are unaware of the dangers of a policy of vacillation with respect to the Geneva Conference can certainly be erased now as unrealistic. For the latest comments from the press here indicate the exact opposite.

The London Daily Telegraph, which is one of the leading newspapers supporting the Conservatives—the party which is today in power in the government—is calling for a firm statement of policy and is warning the Communists that Britain may have to consider a revision of her policy of waiting for the Geneva Conference to adjourn before making any new commitments. Presumably this means joining the Southeast Asia Security Pact. The Telegraph had this to say the other day:

Triumph For Eden
"At Geneva the negotiators are now getting nearer to grips. Discussions are at last to be held on the practical details of arranging an armistice and regrouping the rival forces in Indochina. That Geneva has got this far is in a sense a triumph for Mr. Eden. It is certain, too, that all his qualifications as honest broker will be tested to the full by the trying negotiations which still lie ahead."

"In the first place, it is far from evident that Communist readiness to talk about an armistice betrays any desire for an armistice, still less any readiness to make sacrifices (such as Laos and Cambodia, for instance) to reach one. Even supposing that they do desire an armistice, there is still the question of who is to supervise it, who to guarantee it. By what means, moreover, are we to prevent Viet Minh from stealing by subtlety what they have not already seized by force?"

"It must also be recognized that the indefinite protraction of the negotiations without any settlement being reached would be a triumph not for us but for the Communists. Such an indefinite continuance of the talks would make it necessary to consider a revision of the present British policy of refusing to enter into any commitments until the conference has ended. There is an obvious temptation to the Communists to try and keep us indefinitely at Geneva, dangling the prospect of a settlement before us like a carrot, while Indochina is simultaneously settled by force.

Could Help Bridge Gap
"Unless the United States is assured of British support, she may hesitate to commit herself further in Indochina; without further American commitment, France is unlikely to send substantial reinforcements to what many Frenchmen regard as a sinking ship, and may settle for such terms—if any—as she can get. We should, therefore, make it plain at Geneva that, while our desire for a peaceful settlement remains as strong as ever, unless one is reached within a reasonable time we shall have to join our allies in seeking other ways of stabilizing the situation.

"In this way we could do much to bridge the gap which has opened between American policy and our own in the Far East. It is true that there is no rift between what our two peoples desire. Both long for peace, both are reluctant to commit themselves to a new Korea, both probably sympathize with Mr. Eden's sincere efforts at Geneva. Nor is the rift of policy between those who think a third world war inevitable and those who do not; we disagree solely on the method of avoiding it.

"In essence, the American view is that by taking a calculated risk now we shall avoid the necessity of taking far graver risks later; we think it best to try negotiation to the full. Both views can be cogently defended, and time may reconcile them. In the meantime, it would be disastrous if our great alliance were damaged by mutual suspicions. No doubt the Communists will do their utmost in this phase of the negotiations to drive a wedge between ourselves and the Americans; it is a danger against which we should be on guard.

Firm Statement Would Help
"So far from endangering the prospects of a settlement, the firm statement of our policy could only enhance them. One must suppose that there are in the Kremlin—perhaps even in Peking—men who for various reasons are appalled by the prospect of a third world war. If that be so, we must be careful not to undermine their position by undue weakness. If we are firm, they will be able to restrain the hotheads in Indochina and elsewhere by pointing to the terrible risks they are running. How are they to restrain anyone, however, if we remain divided and impotent while Viet Minh scores success after success?"

"The best way of testing Communist intentions is by clarifying our own. Theirs are not inflexible in detail; they depend to a great extent on ours. There would be no greater mistake for the Communists than to imagine that whatever happens we intend to do nothing."

It has been our self-funding opinion that things have never been as bad as amateur theatricals. Nor as good as Secretary Dulles claimed.

As a perpetual optimist Mr. Dulles rated the old lady who didn't care what happened provided it didn't happen to her.

Our trouble shooter on the high velocity parallels swung an influential portfolio on the international circuit. Until he said something trivial about massive retaliation.

Whereupon our fair weather allies predicted clear skies and sunny neutrality for themselves.

France and England reminded Mr. Dulles that audience participation did not include getting into the cage with the lions.

Massive retaliation was lavened away in the hope chest with the intimate touches of international romancing. With it is the administration mirage of an atomic energy pool for peaceful pursuits.

The mouth reflects disease, con-

Mouth Is The Mirror And Subject Of Many Diseases

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Trench mouth reached its peak shortly after World War I but its incidence has declined considerably since then. The cause is not clear but the disease is more prevalent among persons who are fatigued, eat poorly, and have low resistance to infection. In this respect, trench mouth may be used as an index of our standard of living.

While this condition has been declining, other oral disturbances have increased. Many lesions have been traced to our new medications including the sulfonamides and antibiotics. In older men and women, dentures may lead to local irritation of gums, cheeks, or lips. Cancer is another disorder that may involve these parts. Psychosomatic disturbances must not be overlooked; the effects of "nerves" on the mouth are as obvious as skin lesions from the same cause.

The mouth reflects disease, consequently it is considered a diagnostic mirror of the body. Physicians have looked at the tongue for centuries to gauge the state of health. The structure is examined whenever a cold and an intestinal tract disturbance develops. If the body is dehydrated, the tongue is dry; with anemia, the lingual surface is likely to be red and smooth.

Minor tongue symptoms are common and usually can be traced to local irritation or friction. Burning, for example, may result from the habit of rubbing the tongue against the incisors. Lingua nigra (black tongue) stems from using antibiotics such as penicillin or aureomycin. These drugs kill certain bacteria in the oral cavity but allow others, such as fungi, to flourish; this gives the tongue a black, hairy appearance.

In leucoplakia, white patches develop on the tongue and inner cheeks as a result of irritation. The lesions were discovered initially in pipe smokers; the direct action of the products of heat and combustion are responsible. Since leucoplakia is considered a precancerous condition, it is advisable to obtain good medical care.

The lips are susceptible to a variety of disturbances. Cracks and fissures at corners of the mouth (cheilitis) are troublesome and are seen frequently in older individuals whose bite is changed after wearing dentures for a number of years. Wasting away of the gum ridges leads to drooling and the ensuing flow of saliva mace-

everybody aside in her desire to be first into it. "What's the rush?" growled a cop. "I know what I'm doing," she chortled. "The last four raids I had to stand up!"

Cohn And Schine Used Dubious German Informants In Trip Through Europe

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The full story has never been told of the Cohn-Schine comic-opera investigation of Europe that first catapulted Senator McCarthy's double-trouble boys into the public spotlight.

The two junior G-men made a barnstorming trip through Europe last year, breezing in and out of a few U. S. libraries, and holding conspiratorial conferences with a motley collection of informants, including a suspected Communist spy, a German politician fired for embezzlement, and a discredited journalist making a living circulating anti-American anti-Eisenhower throw sheets.

Advance spadework for their trip was done by Arthur Noyes, a stringer for the pro-McCarthy Chicago Tribune. The day before the McCarthy team arrived in Frankfurt, Noyes hustled over to the U. S. library and searched through the book catalogues for controversial authors. He also collected information from an ex-Nazi, named Fred Rudi, who had been sent by Hitler to Prague after the annexation of Czechoslovakia to "Aryanize" the famous Orbis Publishing House.

A few weeks later, Chicago Tribune publisher Col. Robert McCormick passed through Germany and handed Noyes a $1,000 check.

"You have done a good job, my boy, and I can see that you need a vacation," remarked the colonel. Row In A Hotel

The two McCarthy gumshoes seemed unusually preoccupied with investigating alleged homosexuals, including one very prominent U. S. official.

The pair also made a show of registering for separate hotel rooms, remarking loudly that they didn't work for the State Department.

The incident of their quarrel in a Frankfurt hotel corridor, reported in this column one year ago, was actually reported at the time by the United Press representative in Germany. But UP superiors killed it, possibly in line with the solicitude which the press associations have sometimes displayed toward McCarthy.

What happened was that Schine discovered a notebook missing, and dispatched his driver back to the hotel to search his other trunks. When the driver returned empty handed, Schine dragged Cohn to the hotel with him to look for it. On the way, Schine accused Cohn of stealing it.

The spat got to heated in the hotel corridor that Schine smacked Cohn over the head with a rolled-up magazine. Schine also demanded a search of Cohn's luggage, then suddenly remembered he had left the bothersome notebook in California. Later, their room was found in disarray.

The incident seemed newsworthy to United Press reporter Bill Long, who filed a dispatch. It was killed. Rankled over this suppression of the news, Long turned the story over to the Frankfurt Abendpost, which published it in full.

Cohn immediately retaliated by investigating Abendpost, as to whether the paper had even received a U. S. loan. Cohn also demanded privately that the U. S. Consulate at Frankfurt take measures against Abendpost.

Probing The Libraries

The two junior G-men paid superficial visits to only two of the 48 American libraries in Germany, then announced to the press that they had found Communist books in "virtually every" library.

In Frankfurt they spent only 30 minutes in a hectic half-hour search through the bookshelves and card files of the U. S. library, answering questions from reporters while they "investigated." Then, leaving newsmen outside,

A Toast To Nurses

By Brother Barnabas

If one has never been a patient in a hospital his education is incomplete. He must have that experience before he can join emotionally in the procession of graduating nurses now advancing to receive their togas in every community that is blessed with a hospital.

The experience is easily obtained. All one has to do is walk in front of a moving automobile. The ambulance will do the rest.

Or, have the doctor tell the authorities you have the heebie jeebies. Then, after you have signed away your right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, you can make yourself at home and take life easy.

You are not just a "case", which you probably are in real life, but a guest, tantamount to the "Conquering Lion of Judah."

You are impaled on a bed in which George Washington may have tried to sleep but couldn't. There you lie crumpled up till an orderly brings in another model tailored to measure.

You Are Not Forgotten
You have your breakfast in bed and the coffee is steaming hot. Your library table is littered with papers and magazines, and your television brings you a ringside account of the "Mcarmy" bout.

Friends send flowers and the postman brings daily reminders that you are not forgotten. Your chaplain is attentive to your spiritual necessities.

You have such a wonderful time that "you don't want to get well." Where can you find a healthier spot for entertainment and recuperation?

The high priestesses of this Elysian realm are the nurses. Nattily gowned, slipped and collared, they flit sylphlike up and down the corridors and in and out of the rooms, dispensing smiles and words of cheer that do good like a medicine.

Sharply etched in the consciousness of all nurses is the profile of Florence Nightingale, their patron saint, who turned her back on the pride and glitter of life to dedicate herself to human suffering.

Necessary Ingredients Needed
Like Joan of Arc she heard a voice—God's voice—calling her to His service. She was 13 when she heard the call, and when she died at 90 she had built a monument more lasting than brass, dedicated to the magnificent achievement of lifting nursing out of the sink and making it an honorable vocation, and laying deep the foundations of modern hospitalization.

At first she had thought that all the ingredients necessary to relieve misery were tenderness, sympathy and patience. But she soon learned that expert skill must be added,

Some Eskimo tribes now raise their own vegetables — Factographs. Sort of an Arctic branch of the frozen food industry?

The average woman of over 30 years of age weighs more than 130 pounds, we read. What's the difference — she won't admit to it!

The Chicago White Sox now have,

they barged into the library director's office.

Cohn opened the conversation by announcing, "Whew, I'm tired," then pulled off his coat and stretched out on a couch with his legs on the coffee table. He conducted the entire interrogation from this horizontal position.

Germans smiled, some openly snickered at the local informants used by the McCarthy gumshoes to get the "goods" on prominent U. S. officials. They included:

1. Wolfgang Loehde, 28-year-old agitator, whose signature was found on a Communist handbill protesting against the European Defense Community. Loehde was linked with the Red front organization, Landesgemeinschaft zur Verteidigung der Demokratischen Rechte und Freiheiten in Bayern.

2. Hermann Aumer, former Bundestag member, who was kicked out of the German legislature and expelled from his political party in October 1950 when it was proved that he accepted a 22,000-mark bribe from the oil companies to vote for a raise in gasoline prices.

3. Werner Schoeknecht, who was dismissed as editor of the Coburg Neue Presse because of his Nazi background. Before he joined forces with McCarthy's investigators, Schoeknecht put out hate circulars including Das Extrablatt, which viciously attacked President Eisenhower and the United States in general.

Eisler's Ex-Wife

Before the two gumshoes left Germany, they enlisted Mrs. Hede Massing-Eisler as an investigator for McCarthy. She is the ex-wife of Gerhard Eisler, once branded as the top Communist spy in the United States, who jumped bail here and fled to East Germany.

Cohn and Schine supplied Mrs. Massing with a McCarthy subpoena to serve if she needed it, plus a letter, stating she was an official investigator for the McCarthy Committee. As they boarded the plane to take off, Cohn shouted back: "If you need anything, Hede, or if you get in any trouble, just call Joe."

and that required education and training.

Said she: "A nurse ministers to the spirit as well as the body." Nursing is of the spirit. A patient is not a piece of furniture to be kept clean and saved from injury or breakage.

In one of the battles of the Civil War, a rude hospital was crowded and the surgeons were busy with their instruments of pain. In the midst of the agony and anguish there stood a fair young girl who had devoted her life to nursing.

When the young man's turn came and he faced the operation, he said he thought he could undergo it, if the young lady would come and hold his hand.

A young blond-haired doughboy lay mortally wounded in an Army hospital following a bloody battle. The young nurse trying to console him and not knowing what to say, stroked his hair and said, "You have beautiful hair!" His last words were, "I have nothing on you!"

Tragedy and comedy are strangely mixed in the life of a nurse. A man in a psychosomatic state is peculiarly susceptible to the charms of a personable nurse.

In the present instance the nurse in charge responded to the call of a patient, thinking he wanted the shades adjusted or his pillow fluffed.

Cause or Consequence?

Instead, he proposed marriage. The next day he was removed to the psychopathic ward where he was pronounced balmy.

Whether his dementia was cause or consequence of the proposal is debatable. The safe deduction is that pretty nurses are lethal, and hospitals do not provide the proper atmosphere for romance.

Maryland needs nurses badly. The demand far exceeds the supply. A hospital without nurses would be like a "womanless wedding." The doctors rely upon them. In the operating room they often hold the balance between the life or death of the patient.

She often knows as much about obstetrics as Dr. Stork, and she likes to hold a puppet show in the glassed-in nursery where she performs acrobatic feats with the little darlings for the entertainment of the spectators.

Once upon a time a nurse met with a terrible misfortune: she allowed her "charge" to slip from her arms, and he fell to the floor and became a cripple for life. Despite his infirmity, Mephistopheles managed to "go places." Read the story in Second Samuel 4:4 and 9:5-10.

Allegany High School moved within 1½ games of the first place LaSalle Explorers when Lefty Don Paye twirled Coach Roy Lester's Campers to a 7-3 victory over the Flintstone High School Aggies yesterday in a Bi-State Conference game at Campobello.

Paye turned back Coach Orville Jackson's team with six singles and fanned ten to notch his third win of the season against no losses. The AHS southpaw shut out the Aggies after the second inning.

Allegany actually won the game in the first inning by scoring four runs. The Campers added two in the third and one in the fifth. All of the Allegany players hit safely but Cecil Harry Sr. with a triple and single and Bob Kirtley with a double and single panned the winners' 11-hit attack. N. Smith and Morris accounted for four of six Flintstone bingles.

LaSalle and Allegany clash Monday at Penn Avenue at 4 p. m. A LaSalle victory would give the Explorers the championship. Allegany must defeat LaSalle and Valley High to tie LaSalle for the title.

Hyndman High School concluded its Bi-State schedule with a 4-2 decision over Mt. Savage High School yesterday.

The Pennsylvanians rapped Bobby Blank for nine hits and all their runs in three. George Bishields pitched three frames of hitless and runless ball in relief. Don May went the route for Hyndman to post his third win against four losses. Blank wound up with a 5-3 mark.

Rizer of Hyndman and Blank of Mt. Savage had three hits each. The Valley at Bruce game was cancelled.

Henry Is Arrested For Offering Bribe To Jones To Throw Fight

Latter Is Scheduled To Meet Giardello

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP)—Clarence Henry, ranked as the No. 3 heavyweight contender only two years ago, was arrested today on a charge of offering a $15,000 bribe to middleweight contender Bobby Jones to throw his June 11 fight with Joey Giardello.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan announced the arrest of the 27-year-old Negro boxer shortly after Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the State Athletic Commission, and Jones' eastern representative, Bobby Melnick, disclosed that two attempts had been made to bribe Jones last Saturday and last Tuesday.

Christenberry praised both the 28-year-old Oakland, Calif., Negro, father of five children, and Melnick, for promptly reporting the approaches.

The commissioner said the ten-round bout between Jones, No. 7 middleweight contender, and Giardello, third-ranked 160-pounder from Philadelphia, would go on as scheduled in Madison Square Garden.

Hogan, at a late afternoon press conference, said Henry entered Jones' hotel room at 12:45 p. m. (EDT) today and offered him the $15,000.

The district attorney said Henry and a man later identified as Joseph Hacken, 34, of New York, were picked up a half block from Jones' hotel after the heavyweight had made the bribe offer.

Hacken was held in $25,000 bail as a material witness.

Hogan said his staff moved into the investigation late Wednesday afternoon after Jones and Melnick had reported the two previous offers—one for $5,000—to Christenberry.

Garrett Countian Will Be Ordained To Priesthood

OAKLAND — Rev. Father Benedict Edward Pope, OFM Cap., son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Pope, formerly of Garrett County, will be ordained a priest today in the Roman Catholic Church in ceremonies in Washington.

He will celebrate his first solemn high mass in St. Ann's Church at Avilton on Sunday, June 13, as a member of the Capuchin Order. Father Benedict is the first person born in St. Ann's parish to become a priest or a member of a religious order.

The priesthood will be conferred on Father Benedict by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, D. D., auxiliary bishop of Washington, in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pope and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Loraditch, Cumberland, will be among the relatives and friends attending.

Others Take Part

At Father Benedict's first mass the Rev. Hilary Liehr, OFM Cap., pastor of St. Ann's and also of St. Stephen's Church, Grantsville, will be the assistant priest. The Rev. Joseph M. O'Toole, West Salisbury, Pa., will assist as deacon. The Rev. David Dressman, OFM Cap., a native of Cumberland, pastor and superior of St. Joseph's Church and Monastery, Dover, Ohio and former pastor of St. Ann's, will be subdeacon. Father Hilary, who was in charge of St. Ann's Church also from 1936 until 1941 when Father Benedict entered the seminary, will preach the sermon. Four brothers of Father Benedict, James, Eugene, Earl and Stephen will be servers at the mass.

Choral parts of the mass will be sung by Capuchin students from Capuchin College, Washington, with Frater Felix Petrovsky, OFM Cap., accompanying on the organ. The music for the mass will be Gregorian Chant which has been in use in the Catholic Church since before the eighth century.

Noreen Keating, cousin of Father Benedict and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keating of Pocahontas, Pa., will act as spiritual bride at the mass. The spiritual bride symbolizes the complete devotion of the newly-ordained priest to the service of the Catholic Church. Mary Alice and Margaret Ann Keating, sisters of the spiritual bride, will be attendants.

Reception Planned

Following the mass, Father Benedict will give his first priestly blessing. From 7 to 9 p. m. there will be a reception for friends of Father Benedict and his family at the family residence on the Alverno farm, Salisbury, Pa.

Father Benedict is the oldest of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pope. He was born in Garrett County, seven miles west of Frostburg, September 17, 1929. He attended the Grantsville Grade School. Upon completing his studies there in 1941, he entered St. Fidelis College and Seminary, Herman, Pa., to begin his preparation for the priesthood. At St. Fidelis he took his high school studies and four years of college. He was graduated with honors from St. Fidelis College in June 1951 and received the bachelor of arts degree. At that time he received his religious name, Benedict, and on July 14, 1949, made profession in the Capuchin Order. After his graduation from St. Fidelis College in June 1951, he went to Capuchin College, Washington.

To Continue Study

There are five other sons in the Pope family. James is a student at Frostburg State Teachers' College and is employed on a farm in Mt. Savage. Eugene tests milk in the Uniontown area, Earl, Stephen, and David are attending school in the vicinity of Salisbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope moved from their farm in Garrett County, where Father Benedict spent his early years and his vacations, to the Alverno farm in the fall of 1950.

Following his first solemn high mass, Father Benedict will spend two weeks at the Alverno farm with his family. Then he will return to Capuchin College where he has one year more of theological study before being assigned his field of work in the priesthood. After his return to Washington D., auxiliary bishop of Washington, in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pope and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Lorditch, Cumberland, will be among the relatives and friends attending.

Others Take Part

At Father Benedict's first mass the Rev. Hilary Liehr, OFM Cap., pastor of St. Ann's and also of St. Stephen's Church, Grantsville, will be the assistant priest. The Rev. Joseph M. O'Toole, West Salisbury, Pa., will assist as deacon. The Rev. David Dressman, OFM Cap., a native of Cumberland, pastor and superior of St. Joseph's Church and Monastery, Dover, Ohio and former pastor of St. Ann's, will be subdeacon. Father Hilary, who was in charge of St. Ann's Church also from 1936 until 1941 when Father Benedict entered the seminary, will preach the sermon. Four brothers of Father Benedict, James, Eugene, Earl and Stephen will be servers at the mass.

Choral parts of the mass will be sung by Capuchin students from Capuchin College, Washington, with Frater Felix Petrovsky, OFM Cap., accompanying on the organ. The music for the mass will be Gregorian Chant which has been in use in the Catholic Church since before the eighth century.

Green Keating, cousin of Father Benedict and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keating of Pocomoke, Pa., will act as spiritual bride at the mass. The spiritual bride symbolizes the complete devotion of the newly-ordained priest to the service of the Catholic Church. Mary Alice and Margaret Ann Keating, sisters of the spiritual bride, will be attendants.

Reception Planned

Following the mass, Father Benedict will give his first priestly blessing. From 7 to 9 p. m. there will be a reception for friends of Father Benedict and his family at the family residence on the Alverno farm, Salisbury, Pa.

Father Benedict is the oldest of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pope. He was born in Garrett County, seven miles west of Frostburg, September 17, 1929. He attended the Grantsville Grade School. Upon completing his studies there in 1941, he entered St. Fidelis College and Seminary, Herman, Pa., to begin his preparation for the priesthood. At St. Fidelis he took his high school studies and four years of college. He was graduated with honors from St. Fidelis College in June 1951 and received the bachelor of arts degree. and third year of college work at St. Fidelis. Father Benedict spent one year at the Capuchin novitiate at St. Peter and Paul Monastery in Cumberland. At that time he received his religious name, Benedict, and on July 14, 1949, made profession in the Capuchin Order. After his graduation from St. Fidelis College in June 1951, he went to Capuchin College, Washington.

To Continue Study

There are five other sons in the Pope family. James is a student at Frostburg State Teachers' College and is employed on a farm in Mt. Savage. Eugene tests milk in the Uniontown area. Earl, Stephen, and David are attending school in the vicinity of Salisbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope moved from their farm in Garrett County, where Father Benedict spent his early years and his vacations, to the Alverno farm in the fall of 1950.

Following his first solemn high mass, Father Benedict will spend two weeks at the Alverno farm with his family. Then he will return to Capuchin College where he has one year more of theological study before being assigned his field of work in the priesthood. After his return to Washington this summer, Father Benedict will take a summer course in physics at the Catholic University of America.

Sunglasses are for comfort and safety... but they're an expression of your personality as well!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Want to be a pretty and practical beachcomber this summer? Then treat yourself to new sunglasses. Not one pair—but two or three, as bright foil for your every swimsuit and as protection for your one pair of eyes!

Let me tell you the "why" first, the practical aspects of wearing sunglasses; then the "which," in gray colors and intriguing shapes.

Why sunglasses? Because the longer the naked eye is exposed to the sun, the longer it takes nature to restore the chemicals in your eye. Bleaching of these chemicals by the sun causes a dangerous loss of night vision. Sunglasses are not harmful to the eye, nor are they intended to improve vision. Their primary virtues are comfort and safety.

Price Unimportant

Experiment shows no difference between expensive and inexpensive sunglasses when it comes to the sharpness of vision. At 19 cents or 19 dollars, they'll protect you against glare, thus prevent squinting which, if constant, may result in wrinkles about the eyes or in headaches.

If you'd give a green glow to the world about you, select green lenses. If you prefer blue, then blue's your lens hue. If you'd have true color, there's something new this year in a neutral gray lens that does not distort color perception.

My fashion consultant points out another "new" in sunglasses, the "profile look." Conversation-piece stems extend the whimsical front design along the sides of the glasses. Other whimsies are the "fun frames" with clever decorations—sea-horses, butterflies, jeweled flowers—circling the lens.

Newest sunglasses shapes, it appears, are keyed to the slim line of fashion: they're squarettes and modified harlequins designed to show the eyebrow.

Your Choice

Choose the shape, exaggerated or not, most becoming to your oval, square, round (or otherwise) face. Choose the color most becoming to your complexion. Strawberry red? Pool blue? Pearl pink? Or one of the new colors, perhaps, like bronze, cocoa, ebony, burgundy, amber, tangerine.

Such fun, these new glasses, and what an interesting way to express your individuality! Like buying a hat or having your hair set a different way, there's sense in varying your sunglasses. No matter what you spend, you're making an investment in your own particular brand of charm.

GLASSES THAT ADORN

Wear your glasses as a smart accessory. Choose rims that are the most interesting shape for your face. This special leaflet is yours for the asking. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed return envelope.

Daily Bridge Lesson by Shepard Barclay

DOUBLE AIDS COUNTING

BESIDES locating the majority of trumps held against you, a business double can sometimes enable you to get a complete count of the defenders' hands. That may guide you in building a complete plan for play of the hand, different from what you might develop if there had been no double.

♠ K 6 4 3	♥ 9 8 7	♦ Q 3	♣ J 7 4
♠ A 10 5 2	♥ A K J 5	♦ A K 10 8 5	♣ Q

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♠
2 ♠	3 ♠	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Dbl.

In a friendly team-of-four game aboard the luxury liner Independence, on its India-Egypt-Mediterranean cruise, identical bidding came at both tables on this deal except that Mrs. Barclay, in the East position, wisely refrained from making that double. She and her partner, Ed Hughes, consequently beat the contract, whereas at the other table your writer's partner, Mrs. John Cart, of North Carolina, made it by means of card-reading abetted by the double.

Play at each began with the diamond K and A, then a switch to the heart 2, the Q falling to the K. The club Q was played to the fourth trick in each case, but then came the difference. Where there was no double, the spade 2 was led to the K, the club A and K scored for discards of the diamond 10 and heart 5, and the spade 3 led to the A. That of course promoted East's spade Q and J into the tricks that set the contract.

Following the double, Mrs. Cart decided to treat East as having four trumps. She rated each defender as having four clubs, from their bids, and West as having no more than four diamonds, since they were never bid, so East had three diamonds at least. Since hearts weren't bid, West couldn't have more than four, so East must have two. Thus East held 4 spades, 2 hearts, 3 diamonds and 4 clubs.

Based on that, after using the club Q on the fourth trick, she ruffed the diamond 10 in dummy, used the club A and K to discard two hearts, ruffed the club 7, scored the heart K and ruffed the diamond Q with the spade 4, on which East had to use the 7 to over-ruff. From his three trumps, East returned the Q, which the K took. On the 6 lead, East had to play from the J-9 before the A-10, giving the keen declarer the last two tricks and contract to win the deal.

Your Week-end Question

What factors can help you decide whether your partner's high card on a particular trick indicates a desire for repeat of the suit or is a suit-preference signal asking for a switch to the higher-ranking side suit?

Stock Market Drags Feet, Closes At A Lower Level

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP)—The Stock Market dragged its feet today and closed lower.

There was a lot of shifting around, all of a minor nature, with only a few features developing along the way.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 20 cents at $125.50, unchanged on the week. Volume was the lowest in the two months at 1,720,000 shares.

Canadian Pacific was the day's most active issue for the second straight time up 3/4 at 27 1/2. There were uranium shares attached to the stock.

National Container was in second place unchanged at 12 1/2.

Texas Pacific Land Trust was up 5 at 139 1/4. A week ago it closed at 121. A Texas court decision opened the way for the trust to spin off its oil, gas and mineral rights into a new corporation to be distributed at the rate of four new shares for each old share held.

Among stocks dropping back were New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Texas Co., Kennecott Copper, General Electric, American Woolen, U.S. Steel, Republic Steel, General Motors, Studebaker, National Distillers, Rockwell Corp., and Bridgeport Brass. Higher were Johns-Manville, El Paso Natural Gas, Homestake Mining, Allied Chemical, Chrysler, Packard, Caterpillar Tractor, Air Reduction and Distillers Corp.

Chicago Board Of Trade

CHICAGO, June 4 (AP)—A firm tone prevailed in grains on the Board of Trade today even though advances were nothing to get excited about.

Closing futures: Wheat: July 1.94 1/4; Sep 1.97 1/4; Dec 2.02 1/4; Corn: July 1.50 1/4; Sep 1.51 1/4; Dec 1.41 1/4; Oats: July 70 1/2; Sep 68 1/2; Dec 71 1/4; May 72 1/2.

Rye: July 1.02 1/4; Sep 1.04 1/4; Dec 1.06 1/4; Soybeans: July 23 1/4; Sep 23 1/4; Nov 24 1/4; Dec 25 1/4; Oct 26 1/4; Nov 27 1/4; Dec 28 1/4.

Market Street Bridge Plans Arrive Here

Will Be Reviewed
By City Officials

Preliminary plans and specifications for the proposed new Market Street Bridge have been received by the City of Cumberland.

The plans, prepared by the J. E. Greiner Company of Baltimore, will be reviewed by the City Engineering Department and then submitted for approval of the Mayor and Council.

Final drawings for the span, which must be built in connection with the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection Program, are also included.

The new bridge will extend 111 feet from Mechanic Street to the entrance of the Queen City Brewery, where it ties in with a second span across the Western Maryland Railroad tracks.

Will Cost $172,000

It will have a 28-foot concrete roadway and two five-foot sidewalks, equipped with metal railings.

The single-span structure will be of composite steel I beam construction and is estimated to cost about $172,000, which includes about 15 per cent for engineering services and contingencies.

City officials had planned to begin construction of the bridge as soon as the Valley Street Bridge, which is now under construction, is opened.

May Be Delayed

However, informed sources said it is now likely that construction will be delayed until further channel work is scheduled on Wills Creek, since the city is almost certain to run out of funds before the flood project is completed.

A similar decision may be made on the Baltimore Street Bridge, for which detailed plans have not yet been made.

All three of the Wills Creek bridges must be replaced with single-span structures which give greater clearance between the bottom of the span and the creek channel, to accommodate the greater volume of water which will surge down towards the Potomac River when the high-speed channel plan for Wills Creek is completed.

The Corps of Engineers has deferred further work on the Wills Creek channel until the river has been deepened enough to handle the additional water.

W. Va. DeMolay Opens Conclave With Parade

A climax to the opening day's activities of the annual West Virginia State Conclave of DeMolay in Keyser was a pajama parade from the Davis Hall dormitory on the campus of Potomac State College through the downtown streets of the Mineral County seat.

Dressed in gaudy and vari-colored pajamas, the boys and their sponsors paraded to the accompaniment of band music and noisemakers. They returned to the campus where prizes were given for outstanding "dress."

The conclave formally opened at 7:15 o'clock last night with the ceremonies being conducted by state officers. After the business meeting, the Potomac Valley chapter supervised the initiation of candidates with the Clarksburg chapter exemplifying the degree work.

Today there will be contests of several types, including athletic and oratorical. "Rusty" Reed of the Parkersburg chapter will stage a professional trick shooting exhibition in front of the campus student center.

At 6:30 p. m. the grand annual banquet will be served in the Keyser Fire Hall with the food being prepared and served by the ladies of Keyser's Grace Methodist Church. Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State College, will speak briefly. The banquet will be followed by a dance.

Tomorrow between 9 and 10:30 a. m. chapter counselors' conference will be held in Science Hall. The grand preceptory meeting will be held in the administration building library and the scribes and treasurers' conference will be held in the Science Hall lecture rooms.

Starting at 10:30 a. m., the professional to Grace Methodist Church will be made with Potomac Valley Band leading. The annual rededication church service will begin at 11 a. m. Officers of the order for the coming year will be installed at the close of the service.

The farewell dinner will be served on the campus at 12:30 p. m. A short conference of the new West Virginia officers will close the convention.

Col. Rodda Asks More Zeal From The 'Free World'

Cites Awakening
In Asia, Africa

The westward march of history has brought leadership of a hungry and bewildered world to the United States, Col. Bertram Rodda, New York, national spiritual speaker, told members of the Salvation Army Advisory Board last night.

Warning that the tide of history is an ever-moving one, he said the trend which has brought leadership here "does not mean it will stay here."

"The tide moves," he said, and world leadership could move toward Asia, which is experiencing a great awakening, or Africa, both of which are great fields of opportunity for Christian education.

More Zeal Needed

Christianity, he declared, must move with greater zeal. "We believe in the right things with passive indifference," he warned, while the "totalitarians believe in the wrong things with terrific zeal," he said in describing the "dangerous contrast" in the actions of the free world with those behind the iron and bamboo curtains.

Col. Rodda warned that the communists are very much interested in what will happen in Asia and Africa and know very well what they are doing.

The Salvation Army, he said, is not asleep and is accelerating its work in those fields.

Letters Tell Story

Col. Rodda, who has visited most of the countries behind the "Iron Curtain," told of getting letters from people imprisoned there. One letter, he said, contained veiled language which escaped the censors and told of what is happening there.

One of the phrases told that "hundreds of our friends have gone down to Jericho." A study of the Bible concerning the story revealed the words, "They were beaten and left hanging," in the rest of the passage.

Advisory Board Meets

Col. Rodda said the letter also said many had "gone down to Ephesus," adding the Biblical phrase can be freely translated "they couldn't take it."

The Salvation Army, he concluded, will continue bringing the "Bread and staff of life" to the peoples of the world.

Col. Rodda was the principal speaker at the Ladies Night meeting of the Advisory Board, attended by some 35 members and their wives.

Also attending were Major and Mrs. Paul Thornburg, Baltimore, divisional secretaries.

Daniel Y. Browne, chairman, presided at the dinner event, held in the Citadel.

Labor Surplus Areas Listed

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—The government today added 16 major and 15 minor labor market areas to its list of those classed as having substantial labor surplus, meaning at least 6 per cent of available workers unemployed.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Employment Security disclosed the additions in a new survey of the nation's employment condition. It showed a seasonal pickup in outdoor work, such as farming, but no losses in factory employment.

It said that a survey of employer hiring plans indicated some job gains are expected through mid-July in about half the areas. Only about one-tenth of the areas anticipated further employment losses.

Thirty-one smaller areas, previously on the critical list, were designated for the first time as having unemployment exceeding 12 per cent of available workers. These areas included:

Cumberland, Md.; Big Stone Gap, Appalachia, Va.; Beckley, W. Va.; Logan, W. Va.; Morgantown, W. Va.; Point Pleasant, W. Va.; Roncesverte-White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Welch, W. Va.; Pikesville, Ky.-Williamson, W. Va.

He served as central office clerk, central office repairman and foreman prior to being promoted to his present position in 1949.

Steger Gives Advice On Rabbit Curbs

Trapping Urged
Near Communities

A number of residents have asked County Agent Joseph M. Steger what can be done to curb rabbits who feed on lettuce, cabbage, swiss chard and prized ornamental plants.

Andrew A. Duncan of the Department of Horticulture of the University of Maryland has prepared some general advice for the prevention of rabbit damage to home gardens, Steger explains.

Trapping is one of the best methods to use in or near towns and cities. The old familiar box trap is the most humane, Duncan said. Cottontails are active late in the evening and early in the morning.

During the day they conceal themselves in shrubbery, thickets or other cover. Rabbits do not always follow a definite trail in going to and from their feeding ground, but often do have a particular place where they enter. It is at the entrance that the box trap should be placed.

If trapped alive, the rabbit should be transported some distance away and released. Home owners are advised to check with local authorities before setting traps.

Wire fences help keep rabbits out of gardens if carefully erected and if the mesh is not greater than one and one-half inches.

Repellents offer another method of reducing damage to gardens. The purpose of the repellent is to make the protected plant less desirable to rabbits while not interfering with human use of plants.

Nicotine sprays are the best repellents. One-half teaspoon of nicotine sulfate with one quart of water and should be sprayed on plants at intervals of a few days.

Tobacco dust is equal in effectiveness to nicotine sprays and the repellent quality is longer lasting.

26 Get Diplomas In Oldtown High Commencement

Eleven boys and 15 girls received diplomas last night in the 29th annual commencement of Oldtown High School.

Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, addressed the 26 graduates, their parents and friends. His talk was built around the word "Oldtown," and he stressed the importance that he said the word should have for all of the seniors.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Richard T. Rizer attended the graduation. Instead of presenting the diplomas himself, Rizer called upon the school principal, George F. Reiter, to make the presentation. He observed that Reiter had been a school principal in Allegany County for 25 years, the last 22 at Oldtown.

The principal also handed out 11 different awards. Janice Nethers got three of the prizes. She received the citizenship medal, the scholarship medal and the Reader's Digest prize as the class valedictorian.

Pauline Swick received two awards, the dramatics medal and the home economics prize.

Other winners were Ruby Liven-good, activities award; Clyde Crabtree, boys' athletic award; JoAnn Crabtree, girls' athletic prize; Roxanna Haugh, Shirley Jamison and Ervin Shroud, music awards.

Group Will Study Plan For Ending Md. Segregation

State To 'Go Easy'
On School Change

By HUELL WARREN
BALTIMORE, June 4 (AP)—State authorities today took a step toward ending segregation in the public schools of Maryland's 23 counties but set no time schedule for accomplishing it.

They did not follow the lead of Baltimore's school commissioners, who yesterday decreed there will be no segregation when the new semester starts next fall.

State School Superintendent Thomas G. Pullen Jr. named four county superintendents to a special committee to design the mechanics of eliminating segregation "in such manner that the rights and privileges of no individuals are impaired."

William Schmidt, superintendent of Prince Georges County schools, was designated head of the committee. William Brish of Washington County, James Bennett of Wilkes County, and Reade Corr of Kent County were named with him and Dr. Pullen also asked Dr. John Fisher, Baltimore's superintendent of schools, to serve.

At the last count there were 246,783 white pupils and 37,521 Negroes in the county schools. The ratio in Baltimore is 79,127 whites to 46,139 Negroes.

May Take A Year
The special committee was set up today at a meeting of all the county superintendents and division heads of the State Department of Education.

There was no mention of the action the Baltimore commissioners took yesterday converting the city schools into a non-segregated system effective next fall.

Instead, the State officials clung to a course which may take a year or more longer to give full effect to last month's Supreme Court decision banning segregation.

The possibility thus arose that Maryland may for a time at least become a state divided, with segregation in some schools, non-segregation in others.

This is possible because: 1. City and State legal experts have disagreed on the immediate effect of the Supreme Court decision.

2. The school systems in the 23 counties and Baltimore are largely independent of State control. Local boards operate the schools. The State sets minimum and uniform standards, enforced by granting or withholding financial aid, and provides supervision, guidance and technical help.

Attorney General Edward D. E. Rollins has held the State's school segregation law still is in effect until the Supreme Court issues formal decrees or mandates in connection with its decision. It would be illegal to end segregation. Rollins has advised the State Board of Education, until they are issued, Change May Be Illegal

Thomas N. Biddison, Baltimore's city solicitor, held on the other hand that the Supreme Court's decision already has nullified the section of Baltimore's city code providing for segregation. He also ruled the State law does not apply to Baltimore.

The Supreme Court asked attorneys general of the segregation states to come before it in September and October with arguments and written briefs to guide it in drawing up its final decree. It is possible the decree then may not be forthcoming for some time. It in turn may provide some further delay before the segregation ban becomes effective.

Dr. Pullen told the county superintendents today he felt this was the court's way of "providing a kind of cushion for the shock."

He read to them a statement adopted by the State Board of Education on May 26, embracing the Rollins ruling that integrated schools would be illegal in Maryland until the Supreme Court has made its decision final.

At the same time, the State Board pledged itself to go ahead immediately with plans for making the change and "do all within its power to work out the problem seemingly and in order."

Living Stone Church To Show Film Sunday

The sound motion picture, "Piercing The Shadows," will be shown at the 7:30 o'clock service Sunday evening at the Living Stone Church of the Brethren.

Rev. Arthur Scrogum, pastor, said it is a picture which shows the work of Protestant missionaries in Africa. It was produced by the Foreign Mission Commission of the Church of the Brethren and has a running time of 40 minutes. The service is open to the public.
